

ISTVÁN P. BEJCZY e RICHARD G. NEWHAUSER , Two newly discovered abbreviations of Simon of Hinton's Summa iuniorum, concentrating on the virtues and vices, in «Archivum Fratrum Praedicatorum» (ISSN 0391-7320), 75, (2005), pp. 95-144.

Url: <https://heyjoe.fbk.eu/index.php/afp>

Questo articolo è stato digitalizzato dalla Biblioteca Fondazione Bruno Kessler, in collaborazione con l'Institutum Historicum Ordinis Praedicatorum all'interno del portale HeyJoe - History, Religion and Philosophy Journals Online Access. HeyJoe è un progetto di digitalizzazione di riviste storiche, delle discipline filosofico-religiose e affini per le quali non esiste una versione elettronica.

This article was digitized by the Bruno Kessler Foundation Library in collaboration with the Institutum Historicum Ordinis Praedicatorum as part of the HeyJoe portal - History, Religion, and Philosophy Journals Online Access. HeyJoe is a project dedicated to digitizing historical journals in the fields of philosophy, religion, and related disciplines for which no electronic version exists.

Nota copyright

Tutto il materiale contenuto nel sito HeyJoe, compreso il presente PDF, è rilasciato sotto licenza Creative Commons Attribuzione-Non commerciale-Non opere derivate 4.0 Internazionale. Pertanto è possibile liberamente scaricare, stampare, fotocopiare e distribuire questo articolo e gli altri presenti nel sito, purché si attribuisca in maniera corretta la paternità dell'opera, non la si utilizzi per fini commerciali e non la si trasformi o modifichi.

Copyright notice

All materials on the HeyJoe website, including the present PDF file, are made available under a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivatives 4.0 International License. You are free to download, print, copy, and share this file and any other on this website, as long as you give appropriate credit. You may not use this material for commercial purposes. If you remix, transform, or build upon the material, you may not distribute the modified material.

TWO NEWLY DISCOVERED ABBREVIATIONS OF SIMON OF HINTON'S SUMMA IUNIORUM, CONCENTRATING ON THE VIRTUES AND VICES

BY ISTVÁN P. BEJCZY - RICHARD G. NEWHAUSER

The text known as the Summa iuniorum stands out as the most popular work of the English Dominican Simon of Hinton. It survives in over forty known manuscripts, most of them dating from the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries. Less than half of these manuscripts are preserved in British libraries, which indicates that the work made its way to continental Europe as well.

A new proof of the Summa's popularity in the Late Middle Ages is the existence of two hitherto unknown abbreviations of this work, concentrating on the sections of Simon's text dealing with the virtues and vices. These abbreviated texts will be found below in an annotated edition on facing pages. The edition is preceded by introductory remarks on Simon and his Summa and on the nature of the abbreviations. Moreover, we provide new information about the manuscripts containing our texts: Oxford, Bodleian Library, MS Hatton 107, and Cambridge, Gonville and Caius College, MS 164/85.

Simon of Hinton and his Summa iuniorum

The life of Simon of Hinton is not well documented. He is mentioned as a bachelor of theology by 1239, which would suggest a date of birth around 1210. He probably succeeded Richard Fishacre in the chair of theology at the Dominican school in Oxford after Richard's death in 1248. In 1254, Simon became prior provincial of his order. He was deposed, however, at the 1261 meeting of the Dominican chapter general for refusing foreign students at the priory school in Oxford, thereby impeding a requirement for the school to become a studium generale. Simon was then sent as a foreign lector himself to the order's studium generale in Cologne, but at its 1262 meeting the chapter general allowed Simon to return to England. Nothing is known of his career after that date.¹

This article results from the research programme "A Genealogy of Morals: The Cardinal Virtues in the Middle Ages", co-sponsored by the Netherlands Organisation of Scientific Research (NWO) and the Radboud University Nijmegen, Netherlands, directed by Dr. I.P. Bejczy. The authors would like to thank the Bodleian Library, University of Oxford, as well as the Master and Fellows of Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge, for permitting the publication of the texts; Dr. Michiel Verweij (Royal Library, Brussels) and Dr. Richard Beadle (St. John's College, Cambridge) for their helpful comments; and The Revd. Dr. Simon Tugwell (Rome) for his painstaking reading of our edition.

Apart from the Summa, Simon's extant work consists mainly of exegetical writings and a number of theological quaestiones. It is clear from these writings that Simon was no innovative thinker. He had relatively little interest in philosophical and theological speculation and was rather concerned with the practical application of theology, especially in relation to pastoral work. Even the "scholastic façade" of the Quaestiones "can barely conceal the biblical scholar and the preacher", as Beryl Smalley has put it; the work, which bears no traces of Aristotelian philosophy, "suggests a deeply Augustinian outlook".² The same judgment applies to Simon's Summa iuniorum. The work is a compendium of elementary theology, meant for the instruction of priests.³ It consists of eight chapters (called tractatus

¹ For a survey of Simon's works, with bibliography, see Th. Kaepeli, Scriptores Ordinis Praedicatorum medii aevi, 4 vols. (Rome, 1970-93), III, 345-47; R. Sharpe, A Handlist of the Latin Writers of Great Britain and Ireland before 1540 (Turnhout, 1997), no. 1637 (pp. 614-16). To be added: A. Ghisalberti, "L'esegesi della scuola domenicana nella secola XIII", in La Bibbia nel medio evo, ed. G. Cremascoli & C. Leonardi (Bologna, 1996), 291-304; M.E. O'Carroll, A Thirteenth-Century Preacher's Handbook: Studies in MS Laud Misc. 511 (Toronto, 1997), with an edition of Simon's one surviving sermon at pp. 386-90. Simon is sadly absent from such reference works as Lexikon des Mittelalters, 10 vols. (Munich, 1980-99) and Lexikon für Theologie und Kirche, 11 vols. (3rd ed., Freiburg, 1993-2001).

² B. Smalley, "The Quaestiones of Simon of Hinton", in Studies in Medieval History Presented to Frederick Maurice Powicke, ed. R.W. Hunt, W.A. Pantin, R.W. Southern (Oxford, 1948), 209-22, esp. 222. In his exegetical works, however, Simon occasionally used Aristotle as an authority on natural science; see Smalley, "Two Biblical Commentaries of Simon of Hinton", Recherches de théologie ancienne et médiévale 13 (1946), 57-85, esp. 75-76; ead., The Study of the Bible in the Middle Ages (Oxford, 1952; 3rd ed., 1983), 320.

³ L.E. Boyle, "Three English Pastoral Summae and a 'Magister Galienus'", Collectanea Stephan Kuttner, ed. I. Forchielli & A.M. Stickler, Studia Gratiana 11 (Bologna, 1967), 133-44, esp. 139-40; id., "Aspects of Clerical Education in Fourteenth-Century England", The Fourteenth Century, ed. P.E. Szarmach et al. (Binghamton, 1977), 19-32, here 20. See also O'Carroll, A Preacher's Handbook, 20, for the suggestion in some manuscripts) which discuss the articles of the faith, the Lord's prayer, the ten commandments, the sacraments, the theological and cardinal virtues, the gifts of the Holy Spirit, the beatitudes, and the seven deadly sins, respectively. The numerous logical distinctions used by Simon to define the concepts under discussion, as well as the systematic arrangement of the Summa as a whole, characterise the work as a product of scholasticism. Still, Aristotle is only rarely mentioned, whereas quotations from Augustine abound.

An important source of the Summa was the commentary on Peter Lombard's Sententiae by Simon's probable predecessor in the chair of theology at the Blackfriars of Oxford, Richard Fishacre.⁴ A second important source was the commentary on the Sententiae by Albert the Great. In fact, Albert's influence is much greater than scholars have thus far assumed and at times surpasses Richard's. Our annotations to the abbreviations show that Simon often followed Albert without explicitly quoting him, especially in the chapter on the gifts. P. Odon Lottin observed some time ago that Simon departed from Richard's rather singular teaching on the gifts.⁵ We can now verify that Simon turned to Albert's commentary as an alternative and that his chapter on the gifts is essentially a paraphrase of Albert's views, although his table of the gifts (see below, p. 125) and his division of fear into six parts derive from Richard's work. It is typical of Simon's method of adaptation that although Albert's commentary is interlarded with references to Aristotle, Simon generally ignored them. At one other point Simon opposed the views of Albert and Richard without making a clear choice between them, namely when discussing whether baptized children possess the faith. In fact, it is that Simon's pastoral work, carried out perhaps in association with Robert Grosseteste, may have provided the context of the Summa's composition.

⁴ A critical edition is in preparation; fortunately for this article, the first published text volume covers Richard's discussion of the virtues and the gifts. See R.J. Long & M. O'Carroll, The Life and Works of Richard Fishacre OP: Prolegomena to the Edition of His Commentary on the Sentences (Munich, 1999); In tertium librum Sententiarum, vol. 2: Dist. 23-40, ed. Klaus Rodler (Munich, 2003). The prologue is edited in R.J. Long, "The Science of Theology according to Richard Fishacre", Mediaeval Studies 34 (1972), 71-98; a collection of 73 quaestiones extracted from books I and II are edited in id., "The Moral and Spiritual Theology of Richard Fishacre: Edition of Trinity Coll. MS 0.1.30", Archivum Fratrum Praedicatorum 60 (1990), 5-143. See also id., "The Beginning of a Tradition: The Sentences Commentary of Richard Fishacre, OP", in Medieval Commentaries on the Sentences of Peter Lombard, vol. 1, ed. G.R. Evans (Leiden, 2002), 345-57.

⁵ O. Lottin, Psychologie et morale aux XIIe et XIIIe siècles, 6 vols. (Gembloix, 1942-60), 3:409.

our first abbreviation that allows us to see that the opinions of Albert and Richard are being juxtaposed here; in the sole available printed text of the Summa, the opinions of both men are rendered without naming them.⁶

Among Simon's other contemporary sources were works on theology (notably William of Auxerre's Summa aurea, which he knew independently from Richard Fishacre's commentary, and the Speculum iuniorum of an otherwise unknown Magister Galienus;⁷ he appears not to have known the work of Thomas Aquinas) as well as on canon law (notably Raymund of Peñaforte's Summa de penitentia; in the paragraphs on faith which our first abbreviation summarizes, he also quotes Huguccio of Parma). Surprisingly, Simon does not draw on his own Quaestiones, nor on his commentary on Matthew.⁸

One can infer from Simon's selection of sources that he wrote his Summa shortly after 1250, perhaps – as Fr. Antoine Dondaine suggested – during his stay in Cologne between 1261 and 1262, which would explain Simon's use of Albert's work. Beryl Smalley thought this suggestion plausible, as continental theology only slowly penetrated to Oxford in the middle of the thirteenth century.⁹ Our observations on the importance of Albert's influence increase the plausibility of Dondaine's suggestion even further.

Simon's Summa is not available in a modern edition. An extended version was printed under the title Compendium theologieae in Ellies du Pin's 1706 edition of Jean Gerson's Opera omnia.¹⁰ Continuations to the original text have been inserted in the final chapter dealing with the vices. This chapter is, therefore, unusable

⁶ See below, pp. 111-112.

⁷ See Boyle, "Three English Pastoral Summae", 139ff.

⁸ As observed by Smalley, "The Quaestiones", 214. Simon's Quaestiones (London, British Library, MS Royal 9.A.xiv, fols. 123ra-133rb – which does not begin on fol. 117v, as Sharpe, A Handlist, 615 indicates) mainly discuss moral questions in connection with latria/dulia and iuramenta. The theological and cardinal virtues are mentioned (fol. 123rb) and Simon even refers to the idea of connexio virtutum in his argumentative material (fol. 123ra). Still, there are no verbal parallels with the treatment of the virtues in the Summa.

⁹ A. Dondaine, "La Somme de Simon de Hinton", Recherches de théologie ancienne et médiévale 9 (1937), 5-22, 205-18, here pp. 214-15; Smalley, "The Quaestiones", 210. Other dates have been proposed by O'Carroll, A Preacher's Handbook, 20 (see above, n. 3) and M.M. Mulchahey, "First the Bow is Bent in Study...": Dominican Education Before 1350 (Toronto, 1998), 377 (Simon would have written the work as a prior provincial).

¹⁰ Jean Gerson, Opera omnia, ed. L. Ellies du Pin, 5 vols. (Antwerp, 1706), 1:233-422.

in du Pin's edition, but scholars can consult Dondaine's reconstruction of Simon's text at this point.¹¹ The remaining seven chapters in the Gerson edition, though they do not present a reliable text, stand reasonably close to the manuscript tradition; Dondaine had no problem quoting from these chapters as a genuine expression of Simon's voice.¹² Two small fragments of the Summa were edited from different manuscripts by Lottin.¹³ Finally, Fr. Angelus Walz published an abbreviated version of the Summa, called the Exceptiones and available in a single Cambridge manuscript dating from the thirteenth century.¹⁴ It should be noted that several other abbreviations and/or extracts of Simon's text are extant; moreover, several of the forty-odd manuscripts have the text in incomplete form.¹⁵

The influence of Simon's Summa on subsequent authors has been studied in one case in particular: Simon's fellow Dominican Aage of Denmark, prior provincial of Dacia (Scandinavia) from 1261

¹¹ Dondaine, "La Somme", 216-18.

¹² Sharpe, A Handlist, 615, is perhaps overly critical in qualifying Simon's Summa as "unpr[inted]".

¹³ Lottin, Psychologie et morale, 3:289 (on justice), 409 (on the gifts).

¹⁴ A. Walz, "The Exceptiones from the Summa of Simon of Hinton", Angelicum 13 (1936), 283-368 (after Cambridge, Sidney Sussex College, MS 73.4.11, which lacks folio numbering).

¹⁵ Among the MSS listed in M.W. Bloomfield et al., Incipits of Latin Works on the Virtues and Vices, 1100-1500 AD (Cambridge MA, 1979), no. 245, supplemented by Sharpe, A Handlist, 615-16, delete Basel, Universitätsbibliothek, MS F.I.28: this MS contains Latin versions of Aristotle's Metaphysica (ff. 1r-104r) and De causis (ff. 105r-108v) and Nicholas of Amiens, Liber de articulis fidei, inc. Clemens papa cuius rem nominis et vite subiecti senciant (ff. 108v-112v). Extracts or fragments survive in Bruges, Grootseminarie, MS 27-29, f. 70-72; Epinal, Bibliothèque municipale, MS 104 (42), f. 151-54 (only the part on the articles of the faith); Prague, Metropolitní Kapitula Knihovna, MS D.108 (677), f. 33-39; Vatican City, Bibliotheca apostolica vaticana, MS Ottob. lat. 869, f. 131-37 (extracts on the vices, the articles of the faith, and the Lord's prayer; see V. Doucet, "Commentaires sur les Sentences: supplément au répertoire de M. Frédéric Stegmüller", Archivum Franciscanum historicum 47 [1954], 88-170, 400-27, here 167-68, no. 815). The copy of the Summa in Cambridge, Corpus Christi College, MS 392, f. 175r-195v, is a re-arranged and shortened version of the text, with a section added on the deeds of mercy. Bloomfield et al. qualify Vatican City, Bibliotheca apostolica vaticana, MS Vat. lat. 696, f. 108-80, as "imperf[ect]", but only minor passages seem to be missing. For other extracts, see Bloomfield et al., Incipits, nos. 1643 (on the sacraments; see also Sharpe, A Handlist, 616), 8136, 8187 (both on the Lord's prayer); nos. 0808, 2543, 3506 and 3979, which likewise mention extracts, should be deleted, as the MSS listed here actually contain the whole text. Bloomfield's repertory will be updated by R.G. Newhauser & I.P. Bejczy, "Towards a Revised Incipitarium: A Preliminary List of Additions, Corrections, and Deletions to Update Morton Bloomfield et al., Incipits of Latin Works on the Virtues and Vices", forthcoming.

to 1262 and again from 1272 to his death in 1285. Aage made extensive use of the Summa in the preparation of his own manual of basic theology, the Rotulus pugillaris.¹⁶

The abbreviations

Ironically enough, our abbreviations concentrate on what Dondaine qualified as the least elaborated part of Simon's Summa: the last four chapters on the virtues, the gifts, the beatitudes and the vices.¹⁷ It must have been the intention of the abbreviators to compose a treatise of the genre De virtutibus et vitiis on the basis of Simon's work.¹⁸ Despite this shared interest, the texts have no direct relation to each other: not only are their styles quite different, but the Oxford text contains parts of the Summa which are absent from the Cambridge text, and vice versa, as one can easily infer from our synoptic edition.

The first abbreviation appears in the middle of a late thirteenth-century manuscript, now preserved in Oxford, which is essentially taken up by over a hundred sermons by English Dominicans. The existence of this text shows that attempts to transform the last chapters of Simon's work into a treatise on the virtues and vices were made within one generation after the Summa was written. Moreover, the fact that the text appears among a collection of Dominican sermons strongly suggests that the Summa actually functioned as an aid to preachers in Simon's order, in accordance with the intentions of the author. This abbreviation is listed by its incipit, as if it were a separate text on the virtues alone, in the repertory of medieval treatises on virtues and vices by Morton Bloomfield et al.¹⁹

The abbreviator closely followed Simon's text and took pains to shorten it in spite of its already quite concise character. He often deleted whole sentences or paragraphs and compressed the remaining parts to a minimum – with much intelligence, to be sure, for he ¹⁶ See A. Walz, "Der 'Rotulus pugillaris' des Aage von Dänemark († 1285) im Licht dominikanischer Theologiepflege", Antonianum 20 (1945), 369-400; Mulchahey, "First the Bow is Bent in Study...", 204-07.

¹⁷ Dondaine, "La Somme", 12.

¹⁸ For a survey of the genre and its formal characteristics, see R.G. Newhauser, The Treatise on Vices and Virtues in Latin and the Vernacular, Typologie des sources du moyen âge occidental 68 (Turnhout, 1993).

¹⁹ Bloomfield et al., Incipits, no. 3492.

left the structure and intention of Simon's work intact but for one small mistake.²⁰ The same tendency prevails in the second abbreviation, although the compression is less thorough. Both abbreviators carefully preserved Simon's source references. On the whole, they seem to have refrained from speculation even more than Simon did; moreover, they were less interested in systematically interrelating the virtues, gifts, beatitudes and sins. They generally concentrated on the same topics, both omitting, for instance, Simon's final paragraph on the beatitudes which examines their individual connection to the virtues and the gifts. Likewise, both abbreviations omit Simon's remarks on the relation of the gifts to the active and contemplative life and refer at this point to further discussion in the margin of the manuscript. Actually, the Oxford manuscript lacks a marginal text or diagram to which one could connect the reference, but the lower margin of one of the folios with the abbreviation in the Cambridge manuscript contains the table of the gifts mentioned above. Our first abbreviator apparently intended to insert a similar table in his work, but forgot to copy it from his source. However, the first abbreviator included two other tables which regularly occur in manuscripts of Simon's Summa (and which Simon likewise borrowed from Richard Fishacre) but are not found in our second abbreviation. One represents the oppositions between the natural vices and the gifts, the other depicts the interrelations between eight series of sevens which receive attention in Simon's Summa (the beatitudes, the macarisms [i.e., the preparations for the beatitudes], the gifts, the petitions of the Lord's Prayer, the natural vices, the seven deadly sins, the theological and cardinal virtues, and the sacraments; the sacraments are absent from Richard's table).²¹ This latter table also appears in the Exceptiones edited by Fr. Walz,²² even though neither this text nor the Oxford abbreviation discusses the petitions or the sacraments.

Altogether, the relationship of both abbreviations to Simon's text supports the view that they were composed by their authors for ²⁰ See below, p. 124, n. 89.

²¹ Both tables are announced in the chapter De vitiis as restored by Dondaine, "La somme", 216: "Quorum [sc. vitiorum naturae] sufficientiam, oppositionem ad dona quaere in margine; qualiter etiam contrariantur virtutibus, donis, beatitudinibus, petitionibus et convenienti vitiis, subscripta tabula poterit cognosci". All three tables appear, e.g., in Paris, Bibliothèque nationale, MS lat. 14883 (13th/14th cent.) and MS lat. 16412 (13th cent.); Tours, Bibliothèque municipale, MS 395 (13th cent.). For Richard's tables, see Richard Fishacre, In tertium librum Sententiarum D. 34 (ed. cit. 138, 139, 143).

²² See Walz, "The Exceptiones", 368.

particularly practical purposes. The first abbreviation, however, includes two scholastic questions in the first section of the text on virtue in general concerning the mutual coherence of the virtues and their equality. Both questions were widely discussed from the late twelfth century in commentaries on the Sententiae of Peter Lombard. We know of only one manuscript of Simon's Summa which includes both questions: London, British Library, MS Add. 30508, fols. 3ra-95r (13th cent.).²³ The questions, which appear in this manuscript on fols. 77rb-78ra, are nearly identical word for word with the corresponding section in our first abbreviation. As the questions unmistakably follow Albert the Great's commentary on the Sententiae (the second important source for the original Summa), they may have been added to the text by Simon personally sometime after the Summa began to circulate, because all other manuscripts of the Summa known to us (as well as du Pin's edition) have instead of these questions a chapter often called "De numero et sufficientia virtutum" which presents the theological and cardinal virtues as different instances of love.²⁴ We do not believe, however, that the first abbreviator used the London manuscript as his exemplar, because this manuscript lacks the table opposing the natural vices to the gifts which is contained in the first abbreviation. Indeed, more manuscripts of Simon's Summa which included the two questions must have circulated in the thirteenth century, as is proven by a correction in the London manuscript;²⁵ some of these will have incorporated all three tables accompanying the four final sections of the text of the Summa.

²³ The MS contains on fols. 113ra-168rb a text catalogued as an abbreviated version of Simon's preceding Summa, discussing in sequence the decalogue, the creed, sin, virtues, the gifts, vices, sacraments, the sins, penance, the Lord's prayer, beatitudes, and finally definitions of the most important concepts used in the text (inc.: De primo precepto suppositio [?]. Non habebis deos alienos...); see also L.E. Boyle, "Notes on the Education of the 'Fratres Communes' in the Dominican Order in the Thirteenth Century", in Xenia mediæ aevi historiam illustrantia oblata Thomae Kaeppli O.P., ed. R. Creytens & P. Künzle (Rome, 1978), 249-67, here 259-66. In our view, the Summa is not the main source of this text; for example, the section on the cardinal virtues (fols. 129ra-130r) chiefly depends on Cicero, whereas Simon's presentation is based on Augustine and Peter Lombard.

²⁴ We have seen: Cambridge, Corpus Christi College, MS 392 and MS 477; Cambridge, University Library, MS Ff.1.18 and MS II.6.30; London, British Library, MS Harley 586 and MS Royal 9.A.xiv; Oxford, Bodleian Library, MS Laud. misc. 2, MS Laud. misc. 397 and MS Lat.th.e.37 (information on this MS was kindly given to us by Dr. Bruce Barker-Benfield, Bodleian Library, Oxford; the reference to Lat.th.c.37 in Bloomfield et al., Incipits, no. 0245, is mistaken); Oxford, Balliol College, MS 219; Oxford, St. John's College, MS 202; Oxford, Merton College, MS 202; Paris, Bibliothèque nationale, MS lat. 14532, MS lat. 14883, MS lat. 14976 and MS lat. 16412; Tours, Bibliothèque municipale, MS 395.

The second abbreviation takes up the last four folios of a miscellaneous theological manuscript preserved in Cambridge which appears to date from the early fifteenth century. Strikingly, the text is divided into two parts rather than four. Under the rubric Incipit de virtutibus, the abbreviator discusses the cardinal virtues, the gifts and the beatitudes; at the end of his discussion the word Explicit appears. The discussion of the seven deadly sins starts in the next column and is concluded by an Explicit as well. The transformation of Simon's four chapters into two sections, though of highly unequal length (the first section is four times as long as the second), was obviously meant to fit the parameters of the virtues and vices genre. Moreover, treating the gifts and the beatitudes on a par with the virtues was not uncommon in treatises on virtues; a good example, contemporary with Simon's Summa and likewise of Dominican origin, is the Summa de virtutibus by William Peraldus (ca. 1248).²⁶ Both sections of our second abbreviation are separately listed by Morton Bloomfield et al., without being identified as dependant on Simon's Summa, or part of a single work.²⁷

The section De virtutibus starts with the cardinal virtues. The abbreviator left out not only Simon's paragraphs on virtue in general, but also the discussion of the theological virtues, both of which have been retained in the first abbreviation. This choice may come as a surprise, the more so as the final paragraph relating to the virtues in the second abbreviation summarises Simon's survey of how each of the seven virtues (theological and cardinal) opposes one of the seven deadly sins. Actually, the same phenomenon occurs in the Exceptiones of the Summa published by Walz.²⁸ The Exceptiones, ²⁵ The words "Secunda est ex caritate que est forma omnis uirtutis" are supplied in the margin of f. 77va. These words introduce the second of a threefold distinction which forms the framework of the first question. They are clearly part of the original text.

²⁶ Peraldus' Summa consists of five parts: De virtute in genere, De virtutibus theologicis, De virtutibus cardinalibus, De donis, De beatitudinibus. On Peraldus and his Summa, see A. Dondaine, 'Peyraud: vie et oeuvres', Archivum Fratrum Praedicatorum 18 (1948), 162-236; Kaepeli, Scriptores, no. 1622; Newhauser, The Treatise, 127-30. Dr. Michiel Verweij (Royal Library, Brussels) is presently investigating the tradition of the text in manuscripts and printed editions.

²⁷ Bloomfield et al., Incipits, nos. 5480 (first section), 1482 (second section).

²⁸ See Walz, "The Exceptiones", 352-56. The chapter on the virtues opens with paragraphs summarising Simon's observations on charity, without expressly mention-however, present a much more condensed text than the Cambridge abbreviation and they lack numerous references which are retained in our text, so that the abbreviation cannot possibly derive from the Exceptiones. Otherwise, the second abbreviation is slightly more extended than the first, while being less tightly organized and much more corrupt from a linguistic point of view.

It would be hard to say whether the scribes of our manuscripts personally abbreviated Simon's Summa or took the texts from existing copies. The fact that the second abbreviation fills the last folios of the Cambridge manuscript would argue in favour of the first possibility. Still, similar abbreviations of Simon's text were circulating long before this manuscript was written, as the existence of the Oxford text proves. Our two abbreviations may be representatives of a more widely diffused tradition; it is quite conceivable that further abbreviations of the Summa concentrating on the virtues and vices will be discovered in the future.

The manuscripts

The Oxford manuscript has been described in the Summary Catalogue of the Bodleian Library.²⁹ It is a composite manuscript containing ii + 276 folios. The first part (fols. 1-263) is written in many different but comparable and contemporaneous hands of English origin. Our abbreviation appears at fols. 91ra-95va (fol. 91 was originally numbered 120) as the sole major text in this part of the manuscript which is not a sermon; the Summary Catalogue wrongly calls our text a homily. The immediately preceding folios of the manuscript are heavily damaged, so that one cannot say what text originally appeared before our abbreviation.³⁰ The text following the abbreviation (inc. fol. 96ra: Nunquid nosti ordinem celi... [Job 38:33]. Hanc questionem legitur dominus fecisse ad beatum iob...) ing this virtue. Next come sections discussing the cardinal virtues in general and each one of these virtues; the final section opposes the seven virtues to the seven sins.

²⁹ A Summary Catalogue of Western Manuscripts in the Bodleian Library at Oxford, 7 vols. (Oxford, 1895-1953; repr. Munich, 1980), vol. 2.2, no. 4031.

³⁰ Between fols. 90 and 91, two fol. have been excised; more than half of fols. 88-90 is lost. The hand of fol. 90r is different from 90v; perhaps a new scribe started a new text – which may have been a sermon – at fol. 90v.

is definitely a sermon.³¹ The abbreviation starts on the first folio of a new quire and in a new hand; the hand of the following text is different, which would suggest that the abbreviation occupies a separate position in the manuscript. However, since the sermon following our abbreviation appears on a new folio in the same quire (which comprises fols. 91-102), while the next quire continues the text of the preceding folio in the same hand, it is clear that the abbreviation and the sermons following it were originally meant to be transmitted together, as is also suggested by the continuous medieval foliation of this part of the manuscript. We have refrained from describing the over one hundred sermons in the manuscript in detail; information on some of them (all by English Dominicans), as well as on items added later to the manuscript, can be found in several studies.³²

The description of the Cambridge manuscript in the catalogue by M.R. James is rather short and not free of error.³³ We therefore provide a new description of the contents of the manuscript. James does not give details about its medieval origin. We presume that the manuscript is an English product, as it contains a treatise De decem praeceptis which circulated exclusively in medieval England. The remaining four texts have Dominican as well as Franciscan authors; the manuscript may, therefore, have had its origins in a mendicant environment.

Cambridge, Gonville and Caius College MS. 164/85 (early fifteenth century, vellum, 118 fols., double columns). Scribes: A: fols. 1-60; B: fols. 61-118.

³¹ J.B. Schneyer, Repertorium der lateinischen Sermones des Mittelalters für die Zeit von 1150-1350, 11 vols. (Münster, 1969-90), 6:476 (cf. 4:467), lists a sermon with this incipit from a Cistercian collection contained in Troyes, Bibliothèque municipale, MS 1965 (14th century).

³² See W.A. Hinnebusch, The Early English Friars Preachers (Rome, 1951), esp. 290-96; J. Sweet, "Some Thirteenth-Century Sermons and Their Authors", Journal of Ecclesiastical History 4 (1953), 27-36. Schneyer, Repertorium, contains no references to our manuscript. R.J. Dean & M.B. Boulton, Anglo-Norman Literature: A Guide to Texts and Manuscripts (London, 1999), 156, no. 280(2), refers to an Anglo-Norman poem appearing at fol. 1v and dating from the 13th or 14th century; the authors owe this information to a personal communication by Siegfried Wenzel.

³³ M.R. James, A Descriptive Catalogue of the Manuscripts in the Library of Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge, 2 vols. (Cambridge, 1907-08), 189. In the copy preserved in the Old Library of the College no references to studies on the MS have been inserted.

Contents:

- I. 1ra-60vb: Summa de abstinentia, or Distinctiones Parisienses [= Nicholas of Biard OP, Distinctiones]³⁴

1ra [begins acephalous in article De divitiis temporalibus]: Mammone, Glosa: Diuitiis seruire est Deum negare. Auarus enim pocius obedit nummo quam Deo...

1vb [article De dolore (numbered no. 31). Inc.]: Dolorum vii sunt differencie. Est enim dolor deponendus, dolor recolendus, dolor sustinendus, dolor abhorrendus, dolor precauendus...

60rb [article De vita eterna (numbered no. 134). Expl.]: ...nec in cor hominis ascendit, que preparauit Deus electis suis. Ad que nos perducere dignetur, qui viuit et regnat per omnia secula seculorum. Amen. Explicit summa que dicitur de Abstinencia, que dicuntur distinctiones Parisienses.

60va-vb: [Index. Inc.]: Incipiunt adaptaciones omnium sermonum in hoc libello contentorum prout competitunt sabbatis... [ends incomplete]

- II. 61ra-99ra: [William of Lanicea OFM, Diaeta salutis]³⁵

61ra [begins acephalous in De iustitia]: Deuteronomio 4. Non accipies loco pignoris inferiorem et superiorem molam...

61ra [De prudentia. Inc.]: Prudencia est appetendarum fugiendarumque rerum sentencia, Tullius in libro de officiis. Circa quam nota specialiter tria, scilicet tipum decentissimum, actum utilissimum, portum nobilissimum...

99ra [Expl.]: ...Ihesus filius virginis, cui cum Deo patre et Spiritui Sancto vni Deo viuo et vero sit honor et imperium per infinita seculorum secula. Amen.

- III. 99rb-103ra: [sermon themes on Diaeta Salutis]³⁶

99rb [Inc.]: Abiciamus opera tenebrarum et induamus arma lucis, Romanorum 13. In aduentu magni regis vel principis expiantur sordes et parantur vestes. Ideo Apostolus in hiis verbis...

103ra [Expl.]: ... et luxuria per contrarium. Explicit liber qui vocatur Via vel Dieta salutis. Amen.

³⁴ Bloomfield et al., Incipits, no. 1841 (this MS not listed); Kaeppeli, Scriptores, no. 3046 (this MS listed); see also Louis Jacques Bataillon, "The Tradition of Nicholas of Biard's Distinctiones", Viator 25 (1994), 245-88.

³⁵ Bloomfield et al., Incipits, no. 2301 (this MS not listed); B.-G. Guyot, "La Dieta salutis et Jean Rigaud", Archivum Franciscanum historicum 82 (1989), 360-93, here 378 (this MS listed).

³⁶ Bloomfield et al., Incipits, no. 0077 (this MS not listed).

IV. 103rb-115ra: [De decem praeceptis]³⁷

103rb [Inc.]: Si vis ad vitam ingredi, serua mandata, Matthei i. Dicturi de preceptis videamus primo quare seruanda sunt, secundo quot sunt et qualiter intelligenda ...

115ra [Expl.]: ...cetera communiter ad omnes homines etcetera. Amen. Finito libro sit laus et gloria Christo.

V. 115rb-118vb: [Abbreviationes Simonis de Hinton Summae iuniorum]

Edited in the present article.

Our edition

For the sake of convenience, both abbreviations appear on facing pages (starting at section 1.3.1). We have made the Hatton text the fully annotated edition. Annotations to the Hatton text can generally be taken to refer to the Caius text as well.

In principle, our edition follows the texts as presented in the manuscripts. We have retained readings which differ from Simon's original text or from the source texts quoted in the abbreviations if they make sense from a logical or grammatical point of view; in case of apparent mistakes, however, we have emended the text. We have indicated all of our emendations in the critical apparatus accompanying both texts. We have also respected the consistent eccentricities of scribal orthography (e.g., the use of c for sibilants: "Pricillianistarum", "necessitas"). The u/v spelling reflects scribal practice; the use of capitals and italics has been regularised. Abbreviations of titles of books of the Bible have been expanded, generally using the genitive form, even in cases in which the scribes apparently forgot to add the chapter number. The punctuation and the division of the texts into paragraphs are our own.

The Oxford text is clearly written and contains only a small number of mistakes. By contrast, the Cambridge text is written in a fairly untidy, sometimes apparently hasty, hand and the parchment of the last folios has been rubbed. Moreover, the scribe made occasional mistakes in orthography as well as grammar and seems to have had difficulties with the subjunctive; in a few cases, words appear to be missing. A few of our readings are therefore necessarily conjectural.

³⁷ Ibid., no. 5618 (this MS listed). The text is sometimes attributed to John Waldeby OESA (c. 1315-c. 1372), but apparently without foundation; see Sharpe, A Handlist, 336 (no. 956).

<Abbreviationes Simonis de Hinton Summae iuniorum>

Oxford, Bodleian Library MS. Hatton 107, fols. 91ra-95va

- 1.1.1. 191ra1 Nunc de uirtutibus est dicendum. Et primo in genere, secundo in speciali de tribus theologicis et 4 cardinalibus.
- 1.1.2. De uirtute in genere. Nota quid sit uirtus secundum Augustinum: virtus est bona qualitas mentis qua recte uiuitur et qua nullus male utitur, quam Deus solus in homine operatur.¹ 'Bona qualitas' ad differenciam malarum qualitatum, cuiusmodi sunt prodigalitas et auaricia. 'Mentis' ad differenciam corporalium qualitatum ut albedo, nigredo. 'Qua' scilicet uirtute. 'Recte uiuitur' ad differenciam sciencie que quamuis sit bona qualitas mentis,² non tamen necessario ea recte uiuitur, set pocius ea recte intelligitur. 'Qua nullus male utitur' ad differenciam potenciarum naturalium quibus conuenit et bene uti et male, vt racionabilitas, concupiscibilitas, irascibilitas, que proprie potencie dicuntur. 'Quam solus Deus in homine operatur' quod ponitur ad differenciam politicarum uirtutum que, ut habetur in Ethicis, generantur ex frequenti bene agere,³ cum uirtutes theologice tantum a Deo infundantur, ex quo videtur quod hec sit diffinicio uirtutis theologicae. Set vniuersaliter omnes virtutes sic notificantur: virtus est amor habendi se ad omnia ut debet. Vnde Augustinus, libro De moribus ecclesie, singulas diffiniens uirtutes in omnibus diffinicionibus ponit amorem tanquam genus et adiungit diuersos actus tanquam diuersas differencias.⁴
- 1.1.3. Queritur vtrum omnes uirtutes sint concathenate ut qui habeat vnam, habeat omnes.⁵ Dicitur quod sic, maxime uirtutes gratum facientes que a Deo infunduntur. Adminus habitus omnium uirtutum simul infunduntur, licet non usus earum uel actus, et est triplex racio. Prima ex uir-

5. qualitas] mentis add sed exp. MS 16. vniuersaliter] quo add. MS 22. adminus] admius MS

¹ Actually Peter Lombard, Sententiae II.27.1 § 1, Spicilegium bonaventurianum 4-5 (Grottaferrara, 1971-81), vol. 1, p. 480. Peter attributes the definition to Augustine, but it is in reality his own; some elements of it are in Augustine, De libero arbitrio 2.19 (SL 29:271). Cf. note to Sententiae ed. cit., loc. cit., and Lottin, Psychologie et morale 3:101 n. 2. Simon's analysis of the definition summarizes William of Auxerre, Summa aurea III.9.1.3, ed. J. Ribaillet, 5 vols. (Paris-Grottaferrata, 1980-87), 3:171-72.

² Cf. Boethius, In Categorias Aristotelis 3 (PL 64:242 sq.).

³ See Aristotle, Ethica nicomachea 2.1.

⁴ See Augustine, De moribus ecclesiae 1 (PL 32:1322).

⁵ This paragraph summarizes Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiuarum III.36 art. 2, ed. A. Borgnet, Opera omnia 28 (Paris, 1894), p. 668. For the development of scholastic thought on this problem up to Albert the Great, see Lottin 3:197-219.

tute gracie iustificantis, que quasi totum potenciale est ad uirtutes; oportet enim quod ad hoc ut homo sit gratus Deo, quod omnes simul infundantur uirtutes. Secunda est ex caritate, que est forma omnis uirtutis, vnde ipsa infusa ut forma infunduntur omnes uirtutes formate. Tercia est euacuacio omnium uiciorum in ingressu uirtutis gratificantis que cum aliquo uicio stare non potest, et non expelluntur nisi per uirtutes oppositas, ideo oportet cum vnica sit infundi omnes ^{191rb} uirtutes.

25

1.1.4. An uirtutes omnes sint equales.⁶ Dicitur quod in essencia sunt pares, set in 4 que sequntur essenciam uirtutum sunt impares. In diuisione, quia caritas que nunquam excidit omnibus est dignior et maior. In speciali informacione, eciam sic caritas maior est, quia generaliter mouet in omni opere meritorio, ita non alia uirtus, et ipsa est forma aliarum uirtutum. In firmiori radicacione in subiecto; que enim frequencius est in operacione, magis radicata est quam alia, et opus omnium uirtutum non est equaliter frequens, et ideo que magis appetit in operacione, maior videtur in homine. In vsu promciore; multi enim sunt habiliores ad usum vnius uirtutis quam alterius, ut temperancie quam iusticie uel fortitudinis, et secundum hoc 40 maior videtur cuius usus est prompcior.

30

1.2.1. In speciali dicendum est primo de theologicis fide, spe et caritate. Primo de fide quid sit, quociens sit et quot modis dicatur, que fides informis et que formata, et an vna possit fieri alia, an demones habeant fidem, an paruuli habeant fidem in baptismo siue ceteras uirtutes, an in aliquo casu sufficit seruare corde et diffiteri ore, vtrum fidei possit subesse falsum, an omnes teneantur ad fidem explicitam.

35

1.2.2. Secundum apostolum Hebreorum xi fides est substancia rerum sperandarum argumentum non apparencium,⁷ et diffinitur hic fides secundum quod est fundamentum in edificio spirituali.⁸ Substat enim omnibus aliis uirtutibus et eas collocari in nobis facit. 'Fides est substancia', id est quedam existencia. 'Rerum sperandarum', id est, facit res speratas modo subsistere in nobis spe, que tandem subsistent re. 'Argumentum', id est ostensio vel premonstracio. 'Non apparencium rerum', et quamuis apostolis apparuit passio Christi, tamen hominem passum viderunt et Deum passum esse crediderunt. Secundum Augustinum fides est illuminacio mentis ad uidendum Deum.⁹

45

50

55

⁶ This paragraph summarizes Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.36 art. 4 (ed. cit. 672-73).

⁷ Heb. 11:1.

⁸ Cf. Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.23 art. 18 (ed. cit. 438): "fides diffinitur ab Apostolo, prout ipsa est fundamentum in aedificio spirituali".

⁹ Spurious. William of Auxerre, Summa aurea III.12.7.3 (ed. cit. 3:223) attributes a similar definition to Augustine: "Fides est illuminatio mentis qua illuminatur mens a prima luce sive a luce vera ad videndum bona spiritualia"; William's definition may be based on Augustine, Ep. 120.14-18 (CSEL 34.2:716-20), as Ribbailler suggests in a note. See also John of La Rochelle, Tractatus de divisione multiplici potentiarum animae 3.9, ed. P. Michaud-Quantin (Paris, 1964), 162: "Fides, ut dicit Augustinus ad Consentium, est illuminatio mentis ad summam veritatem"; the reference is to Augustine, Ep. 70,

1.2.3. Fides aliquando sumitur¹⁰ pro habitu fidei informis, Iacobi 2: fides sine operibus mortua est;¹¹ aliquando pro habitu fidei formata, Hebreorum xi: sancti per fidem;¹² aliquando 191val pro actu fidei formata, Augustinus: fides est credere quod non uides;¹³ aliquando pro facilitate credendi, Matthei 8: non inueni tantam fidem;¹⁴ aliquando pro obiecto, scilicet pro eo quod creditur, cuius sunt articuli fidei, Anastasius: hec est fides catholica.¹⁵ Fides formata est fides que operatur per dilectionem que informatur gratia et caritate. Fides informis est huic contraria utraque formabilitate priuata, qualem habent existentes in mortali peccato, que nichil aliud est quam potencia naturalis assenciendi ueritati vtili ad salutem. Cum igitur quociens peccatur mortaliter omnino pereat fides formata, et cum redit ad statum gracie, utrum noua fides creatur et informis fiat formata dubitatur.

Dicunt aliqui quod fides informis idem est in essencia cum fide formata, sed differunt secundum intensionem maiorem et minorem, ut assensus ueritatis utilis aliqua illuminacione gracie radiatus sit fides informis, assensus autem vehemens multa illustracione gracie illuminatus fides sit formata. Isti uolunt quod fides informis fiat formata.¹⁶ Alii dicunt quod non sit idem et recedente fide formata totum perit, et tantum relinquitur modica quedam lux in anima que non facit gratum, que dicitur fides informis.¹⁷ Alii which contains no such statement, however. Cf. also Ralph of Laon, Glossa ordinaria on Matth. 2:9 (PL 114:75A): "fides quae est mentis illuminatio, per quam ingrediens Christum videt".

69. utrum] iterum MS 69. creetur] creetur MS 72. radiatus] radiate MS
73. gracie] supp. marg. MS

¹⁰ This paragraph summarizes William of Auxerre, Summa aurea III.21.1 (ed. cit. 3:197).

¹¹ Iac. 2:26.

¹² Heb. 11:33.

¹³ Augustine, In Iohannis evangelium 40.9 (CCSL 36:355).

¹⁴ Matth. 8:10.

¹⁵ Symbolum "Quicumque" attributed to Athanasius (PG 28:1583C).

¹⁶ This may refer to the opinion of Stephen Langton and Praepositinus of Cremona that natural faith (i.e., faith in accordance with nature as informed by grace) can be elevated by grace to a supernatural plane; see Lottin, Psychologie et morale 3:122-24; id., Etudes de morale: histoire et doctrine (Gembloix, 1961), 81-83. However, A.M. Landgraf, Dogmengeschichte der Frühscholastik, 4 vols. (Regensburg, 1952-56), 1.1:175 n. 63, 179 n. 74, quotes some texts by Langton defending the view that fides informis and fides formata are different substances. A key text is Langton's quaestio "Utrum naturalia fiant gratuita", ed. S. Ebbesen and L.B. Mortensen, "A Partial Edition of Stephen Langton's Summa and Quaestiones with Parallels from Andrew Sunesen's Hexaemerion", Cahiers de l'Institut du moyen âge grec et latin 49 (1985), 25-224, here 159-64. The edited text, based on one manuscript, differs on many important points from the parts quoted by Lottin and Landgraf.

¹⁷ Cf. William of Auxerre, Summa aurea III.42.1.2 (ed. cit. 798-99): "fides informis et fides formata non sunt eiusdem speciei... Dicendum quod luxuria expellit distingunt quod duplicitate dicitur fides informis: vel per priuationem debite forme, et sic dicitur fides informis esse in peccatoribus, quia non est in eis gratificans vel caritas; dicitur eciam informis per priuationem possibilitatis ad formam, sic est fides informis in demonibus, ut dicunt.¹⁸ Et primo modo dicta informis fides differt a formata, fit tamen formata, quia id quod subiaceat fidei informi, formari potest et potest fieri illa, sicut cecitas per miraculum potest fieri uisus. Set secundo modo dicta nullo modo potest fieri formata; illud plus placet pluribus.¹⁹

1.2.4. De paruulis dicitur quod nec fidem habent nec ceteras uirtutes, eo quod hec eis non conferantur in baptismo, set tantum purgacio ab originali. Et si anima paruuli separetur post baptismum, dicunt in illa separacione infundi illi fidem et ceteras uirtutes a Deo, et similiter cum ad*197vb* ultus fuerit, si tamen retineat innocentiam baptismalem. Hec est opinio Hugutionis qui fecit Apparatum super Decreta.²⁰ Alii dicunt paruulis plene conferri fidem in baptismo et ceteras uirtutes, set non usus earum. Huius opinionis est Magister in Sententiis²¹ et frater Albertus.²² Set frater Ricardus dicit quod paruuli non habent completum habitum uirtutum neque actum, quia nondum est capax uirtutis complete, ut est habitus uel actus, set accipit uirtutem potentia que aliquid habet de natura habitus, et

80

85

90

95

90. Hugutionis] H MS

omnes uirtutes... Non tamen sequitur quod fides omnino destruatur... manet quoddam, quod est fides informis"; III.42.1.3 (ed. cit. 800): "fides informis non manet cum fide formata"; II.13.2 (ed. cit. 2.2:481): fides informis "non est vera fides; est tamen aliqua illuminatio preambula ad veram fidem". See also the previous note.

¹⁸ Cf. Philip the Chancellor, Summa de bono, ed. N. Wicki (Bern, 1985), 597-98.

¹⁹ The Compendium theologiae (ed. cit. 296A) reads: "plus placet aliquibus". Indeed, the majority of theologians held with Peter Lombard, Sententiae III.23.5 (ed. cit. 2:144), that charity or grace transformed fides informa to fides formata, with the substance of faith basically remaining intact. See, e.g., Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.23 art. 9 (ed. cit. 422-23); Robert Kilwardby (who succeeded Simon in his Oxford chair), Quaestiones in librum tertium Sententiarum, vol. 2: Tugendlehre q. 4, ed. G. Leibold (Munich, 1985), 16-17. Even William of Auxerre, Summa aurea III.42.1.1 (ed. cit. 792), paid some respect to this opinion: "Si sustinere volumus opinionem, que dicit quod naturalia fiunt gratuita, dicemus quod fides informis est virtus imperfecta..."

²⁰ For Huguccio's view on baptism, see Landgraf, Dogmengeschichte, 3.1:294-95, 3.2:27-28.

²¹ Cf. Peter Lombard, Sententiae IV.3.9 § 1 (ed. cit. 2:251): baptism is the starting point of acquiring virtues; IV.4.7 § 5 (ed. cit. 262): "Quidam putant gratiam operantem et cooperantem cunctis paruulis in baptismo dari, in munere, non in usu". The view that baptism conferred the virtues in habitu was attributed to the Lombard by his commentators, see Landgraf, Dogmengeschichte, 3.1:320-23.

²² Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum IV.4. art. 13, ed. A. Borgnet, Opera omnia 29 (Paris, 1894), 100.

hec potentia fit habitus completus si anima separetur et eciam cum ueniret ad etatem adultam.²³

- 1.2.5. Ad aliud dicendum secundum maiores quod negans fidem ore quantumcumque firmiter corde, precipue requisitus, peccat mortaliter.
- 100 Romanorum: *corde creditur ad iusticiam, ore autem fit confessio ad salutem.*²⁴ Et si sine confessione non sit salus, multo magis cum negacione. Preterea impungnat fidei ueritatem agnitam et peccat in Spiritum Sanctum. Hec est heresis Pricillianistarum, qui dicunt quod licet pro uita seruanda fidem negare ore, si tamen uere teneatur corde.
- 105 1.2.6. Ad sequens dicitur quod fidei nunquam potest subesse falsum nec dubium, quia nichil potest credi nisi verum. Verbi gracia: si sacerdos in missa eleuet hostiam non consecratam, credere quod illa hostia sit corpus Christi non est fides set opinio que potest esse de falso. Set quod sub illa hostia si rite ecclesie fuerit consecrata sit corpus Christi, fides est, et 110 hoc est verum. Vnde illa condicio semper est apponenda: si fuerit rite consecrata.²⁵
- 115 1.2.7. Ad sequens dicendum secundum maiores quod simplices nec ante aduentum nec post tenebantur scire articulos omnes explicite, nec explicite credere nisi quantum docti sunt et quantum intelligere poterunt.
- 120 Set illi qui precesserunt, minus tenebantur propter doctrinam vmbrosam, isti plus propter doctrinam ueritatis expressam.²⁶ Tamen adminus quilibet simplex habens discretionem primum articulum tenetur scire explicite et reliquos in generali credere et nullatenus diffiteri et paratum se exhibere ad discendum. Sapienciores uero et maxime [92ra] prelati tenentur omnes articulos scire explicite.
- 125 1.2.8. Sequitur de spe. Primo quid sit spes, an possit esse malarum rerum, quorum sit spes et quorum esse non possit, an simul cum fide euacuabitur et quid succedet eis.
- 12.9. Secundum Augustinum spes est certa expectacio future beatitudinis proueniens ex gratia et meritis precedentibus.²⁷ 'Spes est certa', hoc dicitur quia non licet hesitare. 'Expectacio' ad differenciam comprehensio-

100. Romanorum] lacuna sequitur MS

²³ The reference is to the unedited part of Richard Fishacre's commentary on Lombard's Sententiae. The Compendium theologiae (ed. cit. 296C) does not name Albert and Richard: "Quam opinionem tenet Magister in Lib. de Sent. & alii plures. Est & alia opinio inter has duas media..."

²⁴ Rom. 10:10.

²⁵ For the example of the eucharist, cf. William of Auxerre, Summa aurea III.12.7.3, obi. 2 and ad 2 (ed. cit. 3:224-25).

²⁶ This summarizes Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.25 art. 4 (ed. cit. 480).

²⁷ Actually Peter Lombard, Sententiae III.26.1 (ed. cit. 2:159). William of Auxerre, Summa aurea III.13.1 (ed. cit. 3:241) likewise attributes the definition to Augustine.

nis que erit in patria. 'Future beatitudinis', ad differentiam timoris seruilis qui est expectacio future miserie. 'Proueniens ex gratia', id est ex benignitate Dei considerata, quod dicitur ad differentiam desperacionis que seueritatem Dei tantum considerat. Illa est diffinicio motus spei. Aliter sic communiter: spes est audacia mentis de largitate Dei concepta habendi uitam eternam per bona merita.²⁸

1.2.10. Ad secundum dicit Magister in 3º Sentenciarum quod est tantum bonarum rerum et earum que ad Deum spectant qui earum spem gerere uidetur,²⁹ quia proprie spem habemus de bonis nostris non alienis, quia ad spem tria concurrunt, scilicet quod sit respectu boni et futuri et proprii.³⁰ Vnde large sumitur quando sperantur communia,³¹ sicut speramus salutem bonorum qui sunt in uia, vel secundum poetam: hunc ego si potui semper sperare laborem.³²

1.2.11. Ad tertium dicitur communiter quod proprie sumpto nomine spei neque angeli neque anime beate neque Christus spem habuit, quia spes non est proprie de substanciali beatitudine quam nunc habent angeli et anime beate, quia stola corporis non ponitur de substanciali premio ipsarum. Vnde Christus quia comprehensor fuit, substancialem beatitudinem habuit, qui si legatur aliquando spem habuisse, improprie dicitur habuisse, scilicet de accidentalis beatitudine, utpote de glorificatione corporis, cuius non est spes nisi per posterius, vel loquuntur de ipso gratia membrorum.³³ De patribus autem in limbo et de animabus in purgatorio dicitur quod spem habuerunt aliquantulum extenso nomine spei. Cum enim spes sit expectacio future beatitudinis, potest esse expectacio cum omnimoda l92^bl hesitacione vel cum certitudine opinionis, et tunc proprie est spes qualem electi in uia habent, vel potest esse cum certitudine scientie quod sciant se bonum eternum adepturos, et sic minus proprie dicitur. Isto modo sumendi spem patres in limbo et anime in purgatorio spem habuerunt.

1.2.12. Ad ultimum sic: cum venerit quod perfectum est, euacuabitur quod ex parte est,³⁴ et loco fidei succedet uisio, loco spei amplexus.

129-130. seueritatem] sereueritatem MS 142. de] om. MS^{*} 143. beate] neque Christus spem habuit add sed exp. MS 150-151. hesitacione] sitacione MS 152. habent] om. MS

²⁸ See William of Auxerre, Summa aurea III.13.1 (ed. cit. 3:242).

²⁹ Peter Lombard, Sententiae III.26.3 (ed. cit. 2:160), quoting Augustine, Enchiridion 8 (CCSL 46:52).

³⁰ Cf. Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.26 art. 7 (ed. cit. 502): "si spes proprie sumatur, tunc non est alicujus, nisi in quo concurrunt haec tria... boni, futuri, et proprii".

³¹ Cf. ibid.: "Si vero large sumatur, tunc erit etiam boni communis".

³² Virgil, Aeneis 4.419 ("hunc ego si potui tantum sperare dolorem").

³³ Summarizing Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.26 art. 8 (ed. cit. 505).

³⁴ 1 Cor. 13:10.

1.2.13. De caritate. Primo quid sit caritas, que sint diligenda caritate, quis ordo obseruandus, an teneamur ad dilectionem inimicorum.

1.2.14. Secundum Magistrum 3. Sentenciarum caritas est dileccio
160 qua diligitur Deus propter se et proximus propter Deum vel in Deo,³⁵ nec diffinitur idem per se ut caritas per dilectionem, quia dileccio quodammodo generis est ad caritatem et ea communius. Item Augustinus De moribus ecclesie: caritas est recta animi affeccio coniungens nos Deo.³⁶ Quoad primam diffinicionem: eadem est dileccio qua diligitur Deus et proximus, 165 eo quod propter Deum diligitur proximus, quia quando vnum propter aliud amat, vnicum amat; tamen gemina dicitur propter duo dilecta, et duo mandata dicuntur esse de dilectione. Dileccio Dei continet tria mandata pertinencia ad Deum; dileccio proximi continet 7 vt patet supra.

1.2.15. Ad secundum dicendum secundum Augustinum libro 1 De doctrina christiana 4 diligenda sunt: vnum quod supra nos est, Deus scilicet; alterum quod nos sumus, scilicet anima; 3^m quod iuxta nos est, scilicet proximus, in quo tam homo quam angelus intelliguntur; quartum quod infra nos est, scilicet corpus. De secundo et quarto nulla precepta specialia data sunt,³⁷ quia semper remanet homini affeccio ad seipsum. Ad 3^m dicendum distinguendo, quia aut beneficium conferendum est spirituale, et tunc ad neminem deuoluitur iure consanguinitatis, quia melior extraneus debet preferri consanguineo minus bono; aut temporale, vt de bonis adquisitis vel heredi-^{l92val} tarie possessis, et tunc dicitur quod consanguineo minus bono pariter indigenti prius est subueniendum. Parente uero, id est patre et 180 matre, et filio in equali necessitate constitutis, prius subueniendum est parenti quam filio, cum ad hoc nos cogat tam lex nature quam preceptum dominicum. Quidam tamen senciunt contrarium.³⁸ Alii dicunt quod dilectione affectuali plus diligendi sunt parentes propter beneficia prestita, effectuali plus filii quia plus indigent.³⁹ Set in equali indigencia prius subueniendum est parentibus quam filiis. Vxor uero preferenda est parentibus quantum ad coabitacionem, non quantum ad dilectionem. Genesis: relinquet etcetera.⁴⁰

1.2.16. Ad dilectionem vero inimicorum omnes tenentur.⁴¹ Mathei:

186. Genesis] lacuna sequitur MS

³⁵ Peter Lombard, Sententiae III.27.2 § 1 (ed. cit. 2:162).

³⁶ Augustine, De moribus ecclesiae 1 (PL 32:1319).

³⁷ Augustine, De doctrina christiana 1.23.22 (CCSL 32:18).

³⁸ Notably William of Auxerre, Summa aurea III.15.3 (ed. cit. 3:275); see also Roland of Cremona, Summae... liber tercius 135.14-18, ed. A. Cortesi (Bergamo 1962), 405-06.

³⁹ Cf. Philip the Chancellor, Summa de bono 722.

⁴⁰ Gen. 2:24.

⁴¹ This paragraph summarizes Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.30 art. 1, 2, 5 (ed. cit. 569, 571, 574).

*diligite inimicos.*⁴² Set ad signa dilectionis, ut dicunt, non omnes tenentur, nisi uiderint inimicum necessitatem pacientem vel ueniam uere postulan-tem. Perfecti autem, ut dicunt, ad amplius tenentur, scilicet ad signum dilectionis. Ista sunt intelligenda: qui fidem christianam et ecclesiam non impugnat, quia tali nisi in ultima necessitate non est subueniendum.

190

1.2.17. In summa secundum Augustinum, Ambrosium et alios expositores primo diligendus est Deus, deinde anima propria, deinde anima proximi, deinde corpus nostrum, post corpus proximi.⁴³ Quod autem iubemur diligere proximum sicut nos,⁴⁴ intelligendum est quod optandum est eis equale bonum eternum; non tamen tenemur equaliter eis temporalia ministrare.

195

⁴² Matth. 5:44.

⁴³ See Peter Lombard, Sententiae III.29.1 (ed. cit. 2:171-72), drawing this conclusion from Ambrose, Sermo in Ps. 118 4.12 (CSEL 62:73) and Augustine, De doctrina christiana 1.27.28 (CCSL 32:22).

⁴⁴ Matth. 22:39.

[Ox]

1.3.1. Nunc de 4 uirtutibus cardinalibus. Iusticia secundum Augustinum est in subueniendo miseris, prudencia in cauendis insidiis, fortitudo in perferendis molestiis, temperancia in prauis delectacionibus cohercendis.⁴⁵ De quibus primo in genere dicendum quare dicantur pollitice vel ciuiles. Dicuntur autem cardinales quasi cardiales ad differenciam uirtutum corporalium. Cardo enim secundum Ysidorum libro Ethimologiarum a corde deriuatur, a cardias grece quod est cor latine.⁴⁶ Vel I92vbl secundum alios dicuntur cardinales quia in eis sicut in cardinibus omnis uirtus maxime ciuilis voluitur.⁴⁷ Secundum philosophos dicuntur cardinales quia in hiis sicut in cardine est reuolucio tocius uite humanae secundum statum honestum et ciuilem.⁴⁸ Ciuiles autem dicuntur quia constituunt bonum statum vnius cum alio in ordine ciuium.⁴⁹ Hiis enim secundum Plotinium et Macrobius boni uiri rei puplice consulunt, vrbes tuentur, parentes uenerantur, proximos amant.⁵⁰ Politice autem dicuntur eadem de causa, quia polis grece ciuitas latine, politice ciuiiles.

1.3.2. Sequitur que sit quelibet uirtus in se et qui eius actus, tum in uia tum in patria. Est autem iusticia secundum Augustinum uirtus tribuens vnicuique quod suum est,⁵¹ quod conuenit iusticie tam secundum statum

214. actus] eius add. sed exp. MS

⁴⁵ Peter Lombard, Sententiae III.33.1 § 2 (ed. cit. 2:188), adapting Augustine, De Trinitate 14.9 (SL 50A:439).

⁴⁶ Isidorus, Etymologiae 15.7.7, ed. W.M. Lindsay (Oxford, 1911). For a brief discussion of the term virtutes cardinales in scholasticism, see Lottin, Psychologie et morale, 3:174-80.

⁴⁷ Cf. Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.33 art. 2 arg. 5 (ed. cit. 609): "ideo cardinales vocantur, quia in eis velut in cardinibus omnes aliae et virtus civilis volvitur".

⁴⁸ Cf. ibid.: "Alii autem, ut Philosophi, vocant eas cardinales, ideo quia sunt cardo revolutionis humanae vitae secundum statum ciuilem et honesti: et haec est ratio propria et usitata apud Tullium et alios Philosophos de eis loquentes".

⁴⁹ Cf. ibid., p. 610: "Ciuiles autem dicuntur, secundum quod constituunt bonum statum unius cum alio in ordine ciuium: et haec eadem ratio est, quare dicuntur politicae, nisi quod unum est Graecum, et alterum Latinum".

⁵⁰ Macrobius, Commentarii in Somnium Scipionis 1.8.6, ed. J. Willis (Leipzig, 1970), 37. Both Plotinus and Plato are mentioned in 1.8.5 (ibid.), but the correct reference here is to Plotinus.

⁵¹ The definition derives from Cicero, De finibus 5.23.67. Augustine quoted it frequently, see e.g. De diversis quaestionibus 2 (SL 44A:11), De libero arbitrio 1.13 (SL 29:229), De Genesi contra Manichaeos 2.27.41 (PL 34:218), Enarrationes in Psalmos 83.11 (SL 39:1158), De civitate Dei 19.4 (SL 48:666).

[Ca] Cambridge, Gonville and Caius College MS. 164/85, fols. 115rb-118vb

1.3.1. |115rb| Incipit de virtutibus. Sequitur aliquid videre de virtutibus cardinalibus et primo de iusticia, que secundum Augustinum est in subueniendo in miseriis; prudencia, que est in cauendo insidiis; fortitudo, que est in perferendis molestiis; temperancia, que est in prauis cogitationibus cohercendis et delectacionibus. De quibus dicendum est quare dicuntur cardinales et ciuiles et politice, deinde de singulis que sit quelibet virtus in se et qui sunt proprii actus tam in via quam in patria. Dicuntur autem cardinales virtutes secundum quosdam quasi cordiales ad differenciam virtutum corporalium; cardo enim secundum Isidorum a corde diriuatur, quia cardian Grece cor est Latine. Vel ut alii dicunt, dicuntur cardinales, quia in eis sicut in cardine omnis alia virtus maxime ciuilis voluitur. Secundum philosophos autem qui de ipsis tractauerunt dicuntur cardinales, quia in hijs sicut in cardine est reuolucio tocius vite humane secundum statum honestum et ciuilem. Ciuires autem dicuntur, quia constituunt bonum statum vnius cum alio in ordine ciuium. Hijs secundum Platonem et Macrobius boni viri rei puplice consulunt, vrbes tuentur, proximos sanant.¹ Politice autem dicuntur eadem de causa, quia idem polis Grece, quod ciuitas Latine et politici, quod ciuiiles.

1.3.2. Est autem iusticia secundum Augustinum virtus tribuens vnicuique quod suum est, que diffinicio conuenit iusticie tam secundum statum vie quam secundum statum patrie. Alia autem diffinicio est, que ponitur: iusticia est subvenire miseris, et conuenit iusticie tantum secundum statum vie. Ponuntur autem secundum Magistrum in Sentenciis duo eius actus, scilicet actus in via, scilicet miseris subuenire, et in patria Deo regenti subesse. Hijs sunt actus generales ad quos omnes tenentur (sunt et alij speciales quippe iusticie actus). Generalis est vnicuique etcetera, hoc est superioribus, paribus, et inferioribus. Superioribus preminencia, et hoc duplicitate: vel essencialiter, et sic dicitur actus eius inferiora pocroribus subdere, quam ponit Augustinus, De libero arbitrio, libro ij, |115val vel specialiter, et sic dicitur actus eius soli Deo seruire, Augustinus in 6 Musice. Si autem est in tribuendo quod suum est paribus, sic est triplex actus eius: vnu paria

¹ The form "sanant" may be a mistake (scribal or authorial) for "amant"; Macrobius, Commentarii in Somnium Scipionis 1.8.6, ed. J. Willis (Leipzig, 1970), 37, has "proximos diligunt" (1.8.6).

ue quam secundum statum patrie. Iusticia que est subuenire miseris,⁵² [Ox] conuenit iusticie tantum secundum statum uie. Actus enim in patria Deo regenti subesse, in via miseris subuenire.⁵³ Iusticie actus generales tribuere 220 vnicuique etcetera: superioribus preeminenciam, vel generaliter, et sic dicitur eius actus inferiora pocioribus subdere, Augustinus, De libero arbitrio libro 2,⁵⁴ vel spiritualiter, et sic dicitur eius actus soli Deo seruire, Augustinus in 6 Musice;⁵⁵ paribus, et sic eius actus est paria sibimet copulare, Augustinus, De libero arbitrio libro 1;⁵⁶ nullis coequari nisi purissimis animis, nulli dominari appetere nisi nature corporali uel bestiali, Augustinus, 225 6 Musice;⁵⁷ inferioribus, tum quoad penam subleuandam, et sic ponitur eius actus miseris subuenire, 3 Sentenciarum,⁵⁸ tum quoad culpam corrigendam, et sic ponitur eius actus iniquos moribus punire, Augustinus, Super Genesim.⁵⁹

230 1.3.3. Prudencia secundum Magistrum in Sentenciis est in cauendis insidiis,⁶⁰ vel sic apercius: prudencia est virtus rerum bonarum vel malorum utrarumque discrecio cum fuga mali et eleccione boni,⁶¹ et trahuntur a uerbis 193ral Augustini, De 83 questionibus.⁶² Ponuntur autem plures eius actus. Patrie: nullum bonum Deo preponere, qui ponitur hic,⁶³ veritatem 235 conspicere, Augustinus, 6 Musice.⁶⁴ Vie: precauere insidias, qui actus ponitur 3 Sentenciarum;⁶⁵ mala deuitare, quem ponit Augustinus, Super Gene-

220. preeminenciam] preminenciam MS 231. est] rerum add. sed exp. MS

⁵² See above, n. 45; cf. E. Lio, "Il testo di S. Agostino «justitia <est> in subveniendo miseris» in Pier Lombardo e nei suoi glossatori fino a S. Tomasso d'Aquino", Miscellanea lombardiana (Novara, 1957), 175-222, discussing the views of Fishacre (202-05) and Hinton (209-10).

⁵³ Peter Lombard, Sententiae III.33.3 § 4 and 2 (ed. cit. 2: 189), citing Augustine, De Trinitate 14.9 (SL 50A:439).

⁵⁴ Augustine, De libero arbitrio 2.10 (SL 29:257).

⁵⁵ Augustine, De musica 6.15.50 (PL 32:1189).

⁵⁶ Augustine, De libero arbitrio 2.10 (SL 29:257).

⁵⁷ Augustine, De musica 6.15.50 (PL 32:1189), actually discussing justice.

⁵⁸ Peter Lombard, Sententiae III.33.1 § 2 (ed. cit. 2:188), citing Augustine, De Trinitate 14.9 (see above, n. 45).

⁵⁹ Cf. Augustine, De Genesi ad litteram 12.26 (CSEL 28.1:419).

⁶⁰ Peter Lombard, Sententiae III.33.1 § 2 (ed. cit. 2:188), citing Augustine, De Trinitate 14.9 (see above, n. 45).

⁶¹ Cf. Alan of Lille, De virtutibus et vitiis, ed. Lottin, Psychologie et morale 6:51.

⁶² Augustine, De diversis quaestionibus 31 (SL 44A:41), citing Cicero, De inventione 2.53.160.

⁶³ Peter Lombard, Sententiae III.33.3 § 3 (ed. cit. 2:189), citing Augustine, De Trinitate 14.9 (SL 50A:439).

⁶⁴ Cf. Augustine, De musica 6.16.55 (PL 32:1191).

⁶⁵ See above, n. 60.

[Ca] sibimet copulare, Augustini De libero arbitrio, libro primo; alias nullis coequari, nisi piissimis animis;² tertius nulli dominari appetere, nisi nature corporali, de quibus Augustinus, 6 Musice. Si autem est in tribuendo inferioribus, hoc dupliciter: vel quoad penam subleuandam, et sic est actus eius miseris subuenire secundum Magistrum in Sentenciis, vel quoad culpam corigendam, et sic est actus eius iniquos moribus punire, ut Augustinus Super Genesim.

35

1.3.3. De prudencia. Prudencia secundum Magistrum in Sentenciis est in precaudis insidijs, vnde sic apercius diffinitur: prudencia est virtus rerum bonarum, malarum, neutrarumque, id est indifferencium discrecio cum fuga mali et eleccione boni, et trahitur a verbis Augustini in Questiobibus, vbi dicitur: Quid prudencia? Est rerum malarum et bonarum et neutrarum sciencia. Ponuntur autem plures eius actus patrie. Vnus nullum bonum preponere Deo, qui ponitur 3 Sentenciarum. Alius ipsam aspicere veritatem, Augustini 6 Musice et †5 Sent.³ Ponuntur actus vie precauere insidias, 3 Sentenciarum. Item mala deuitare, Augustini Super Genesim ad litteram, libro 12. Item incorrupcionem corrucionis preponere, Augustini De libero arbitrio, libro primo. Item discernere bonum a malo, Augustini De ciuitate Dei, libro 19. Item eterna temporalibus preponere, Augustini 6 Musice.

40

45

50

32-33. coequari] coequare MS 41. indifferencium] differencium MS 41. discrecio] discreco MS

² The form “piissimis” may be a mistake; Augustine, De musica 6.15.50 (PL 32:1189), has “purissimis”.

³ The reference to the Sententiae (which counts only four books) is mistaken. What may have led to this misreading is the scribe’s difficulty with a reference such as “Super Gen” (i.e., in this case Augustine, De Genesi ad litteram 12.26, the same passage noted above in the Hatton text, n. 59).

sim ad litteram;⁶⁶ incorruptionem corrupcionis preponere, Augustinus, De libero arbitrio libro 1;⁶⁷ bonum a malo discernere, Augustinus, De ciuitate Dei libro 19;⁶⁸ eterna temporalibus preponere, Augustinus 6 Musice.⁶⁹

240 1.3.4. Fortitudo est in perferendis molestiis, vnde sic diffinitur: fortitudo est immobilis animi inter aduersa laborum et periculorum equa suscepcio.⁷⁰ Cuius actus assignantur vie: firmare animum contra temporales molestias, De 83 questionibus;⁷¹ non aduersitatem nec mortem temporalem formidare, in 6 Musice;⁷² a sapienter electo nullis terroribus penisque depelli, Augustinus, De libero arbitrio;⁷³ libenter pro electo habendo aduersa tolerare, Augustinus, Super Genesim ad litteram.⁷⁴ Patrie: firmissime Deo coherere, qui actus ponitur 3 Sentenciarum;⁷⁵ nichil moleste pati, 6° Musice.⁷⁶

250 1.3.5. Temperancia est in prauis delectacionibus cohercendis. Diffinatur sic ab Augustino, De libero arbitrio: temperancia est affecio cohercens appetitum ab hiis rebus que turpiter appetuntur.⁷⁷ Actus uie: subtrahere se ab amore inferioris pulcritudinis, in 6 Musice;⁷⁸ cohercere delectaciones prauas, 3° Sentenciarum;⁷⁹ libidinem refrenare, Augustinus, Super Genesim libro 12;⁸⁰ refrenare cupiditates ab hiis que temporaliter delectant, De libero arbitrio.⁸¹ Patrie: nullo defectu noxio delectari, 3 Sentenciarum;⁸² inmaculatum manere, 6 Musice.⁸³

251. actus uie] bis MS

⁶⁶ Augustine, De Genesi ad litteram 12.26 (CSEL 28.1:419).

⁶⁷ Augustine, De libero arbitrio 2.10 (SL 29:257).

⁶⁸ Augustine, De civitate Dei 19.4 (SL 48:666).

⁶⁹ Cf. Augustine, De musica 6.13.37 (PL 32:1183).

⁷⁰ Cf. Cicero, De inventione 2.54.163: "Fortitudo est considerata periculorum susceptio et laborum perpessio"; Conrad of Hirsau, De fructibus carnis et spiritus 14 (PL 176:1003B): "Fortitudo est immobilis inter adversa animi laborum et periculorum susceptio".

⁷¹ Augustine, De diversis quaestionibus 61.4 (SL 44A:127).

⁷² Augustine, De musica 6.15.50 (PL 32:1189).

⁷³ Cf. Augustine, De libero arbitrio 2.10 (SL 29:257).

⁷⁴ Cf. Augustine, De Genesi ad litteram 12.26 (CSEL 28.1:419).

⁷⁵ Peter Lombard, Sententiae III.33.3 § 3 (ed. cit. 2:189), citing Augustine, De Trinitate 14.9 (SL 50A: 439).

⁷⁶ Augustine, De musica 6.16.55 (PL 32:1191).

⁷⁷ Augustine, De libero arbitrio 1.13 (SL 29:228).

⁷⁸ Augustine, De musica 6.15.50 (PL 32:1189).

⁷⁹ Peter Lombard, Sententiae III.33.1 § 2 (ed. cit. 2:188), citing Augustine, De Trinitate 14.9 (see above, n. 45).

⁸⁰ Augustine, De Genesi ad litteram 12.26 (CSEL 28.1:419).

⁸¹ Actually Augustine, De diversis quaestionibus 61.4 (SL 44A:127).

⁸² Peter Lombard, Sententiae III.33.3 § 3 (ed. cit. 2:189), citing Augustine, De Trinitate 14.9 (SL 50A:439).

⁸³ Augustine, De musica 6.16.55 (PL 32:1191).

[Ca] 1.3.4. De fortitudine. Fortitudo est in ferendis molestijs, vnde secundum quosdam apercius sic diffinitur: fortitudo est immobilis animi inter aduersa laborum et periculorum equa concepcion.⁴ Cuius plures assignantur actus vie quadruplex. Vnus firmare animum contra temporales molestias, Augustini De 83 questionibus. Item aliis non aduersitatem neque mortem temporealem formidare, Augustini 6 Musice. Item a sapienter electo nullis 115vbl terroribus penisque depelli, Augustini De libero arbitrio. Item pro dileccione habenda aduersa tollerare,⁵ Augustini Super Genesim, libro 12. Actus patrie duplex. Vnus firmissime Deo coherere, 3 Sentenciarum. Item nichil moleste pati,⁶ Augustini 6 Musice. 55 60

1.3.5. Temperancia est in prauis delectacionibus cohercendis. Diffinatur autem sic ab Augustino, De libero arbitrio: temperancia est cohercio appetituum ab hijs rebus, que turpiter appetuntur. Cuius actus assignantur in via subtrahere se ab amore inferioris pulcritudinis, Augustini 6 Musice. Item cohercere dilectaciones prauas, 3 Sentenciarum. Item libidinem refrenare, Augustini Super Genesim, libro 12. Item refrenare cupiditates ab hijs que temporaliter delectant, Augustini De libero arbitrio. Actus patrie est nullo defectu noxio delectari, 3 Sentenciarum. Item immaculatum manere, 65 70 6 Musice.

57. a sapienter electo] aspicienter relicto MS 63. temperancia] temperancio
MS 67. 12] 2 MS

⁴ Both Cicero, De inventione 2.54.163, and Conrad of Hirsau, De fructibus carnis et spiritus 14 (PL 176:1003B) use "susceptio" here, not "concepicio".

⁵ The form "dileccione" may be a misreading for "dilecto" in Augustine, De Genesi ad litteram 12.26 (CSEL 28.1:419).

⁶ The form "moleste" may be a misreading for "molestie" in Augustine, De musica 6.16.55 (PL 32:1191).

[Ox]

1.4. Fides, que mentem illuminat, expellit superbiam, que cor excecat. Spes, que gaudio futurorum cor letificat, expellit iram, que presenti miseria mentem conturbat. Caritas, que gaudet de proximi prosperitate, 260 delet inuidiam, que est odium felicitatis alienae. Fortitudo, per quam in actus uiriles consurgimus, pellit ac- [93rb] iram, per quam desidia contabescimus. Iusticia, que que sua sunt vnicuique tribuit, delet auariciam, que aliena retinet et rapit. Temperancia, que excessum reprimit, tollit gulam, que modum excedit. Prudencia, qua incorrupcionem corrupcioni preponimus secundum Augustinum, De libero arbitrio,⁸⁴ euacuat luxuriam, qua corpus corrumpitur et anima.

2.1.1. Sequitur de donis. Primo uidendum utrum sint idem quod uirtutes vel in quo differunt, quot et que sunt.

2.1.2. Opinio fere omnium est quod dona non sunt uirtutes. Quidam 270 dicunt quod uirtutes principaliter sunt ad agendum et ideo diffiniuntur per actus suos. Dona autem principaliter sunt ad resistendum temptationibus que impugnant uiam habite uirtutis.⁸⁵ Alii dicunt et melius quod uirtutes sunt ad agendum simpliciter, set dona sunt expeditiones uirtutum et sunt ad expedite agendum.⁸⁶ Alii dicunt quod in donis illa que pertinent ad affectum sunt uirtutes, que autem pertinent ad aspectum non. Media opinio est probabilior quia nititur sentencie Gregorii.⁸⁷

259. prosperitate] p cum lacuna MS 260. inuidiam] iram MS 265. euacuat luxuriam] euacuatur luxuria MS

⁸⁴ See above, n. 67.

⁸⁵ Cf. Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.34 art. 1 (ed. cit. 617): "Quidam enim dicunt... quod virtutes sint principaliter ad agendum, et ideo diffiniuntur per actus, et habent proprias operationes: sed dona sunt ad resistendum temptationibus quae impugnant vitam virtutis jam habitae". This opinion was quoted and rejected by several other scholastics in the first half of the 13th century, but it seems never to have found serious support; see Lottin, Psychologie et morale 3:337, 346 (William of Auxerre); 360 (Philip the Chancellor), 367 (anonymous), 401 (Bonaventure).

⁸⁶ Cf. Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.34 art. 1 (ed. cit. 618): "... dicunt, quod virtutes sunt ad agendum simpliciter: sed dona sunt expeditiones virtutum, et sunt ad agendum expedite: et haec opinio quandoque habuit multos defensores propter verbum Gregorii qui dicit, quod dona data sunt in adjutorium virtutum contra defectum". See also Lottin, Psychologie et morale 3:351 (Hugh of Saint Cher), 361 (Philip the Chancellor), 376 (John of La Rochelle), 388 (Odon Rigaud), 401 (Bonaventure).

⁸⁷ Cf. Gregory the Great, Moralia in Iob 2.49, 35.8 (SL 143:106, 143B:1783-84).

- [Ca] 1.3.6. Item 4 virtutes cardinales hominem ad theologicas consequendas habilitant. Hijs nichil est vtilius in via, secundum quod informantur caritate: tunc enim eque meritorie sunt vite eterne ut theologice. An autem hee virtutes future sunt in patria, dicit Magister 3 Sentenciarum quod sic, sed secundum alios actus, ut patet per singulas.⁷ 75
- 1.4. Vltimo dicendum est, qualiter per 7 virtutes 7 capitalia vicia expellantur. Fides enim, que mentem illuminat, expellit superbiam, que cor excecat. Spes, que futurorum gaudio cor letificat, expellit iram, que presenti miseria mentem turbat. Caritas, que gaudet de proximi prosperitate, delet inuidiam, que est odium alienae felicitatis. Fortitudo, per quam in actus viriles consurgimus, pellit accidiam, per quam desidia contabescimus. Iusticia, que vnicuique que sua sunt tribuit, eliminat auariciam, que aliena rapit et retinet. Temperancia, l116ral que excessum reprimit, expellit gulam, que modum excedit. Prudencia, qua incorpcionem corpcioni preponimus secundum Augustinum, euacuat luxuriam, qua corpus simul corumpitur et anima etcetera. 80 85

2.1.1. Postmodum de donis Spiritus Sancti sub compendio est tangentum, et primo dicendum est vtrum idem sunt quod virtutes 7 prenominate, vel in quo differunt, quot et que sunt; de singulis in se pauca tangenda; qualiter per ipsa excludantur 7 capitalia. 90

2.1.2. Est autem opinio fere omnium, quod dona non sunt virtutes, sed discordant in assignando istam differenciam. Quidam enim dicunt, quod virtutes principaliter sunt ad agendum et ideo distinguntur per actus et operaciones suas; dona autem sunt principaliter ad temptationibus recistendum, que impugnant viam iam virtutis habite. Alii dicunt et melius, quod virtutes sunt ad agendum simpliciter, sed dona sunt expediciones virtutum et sunt ad expedite agendum. Sunt et alij qui distingunt dicentes, quod in donis illa, que pertinent ad affectum <....> nequaquam,⁸ et hij facile soluunt, que possunt obici ex vtraque parte, vtrum sunt virtutes uel non. Sed quia media opinio innititur sentencie beati Gregorii, probabilior habetur a pluribus. 95 100

90. capitalia] capitalium MS

⁷ Peter Lombard, Sententiae III.33.3 (ed. cit. 2:188-89).

⁸ Apparently an eye-skip has resulted in a missing phrase, which can be reconstructed on the basis of the Hatton text and the extract from Simon of Hinton's text printed in Lottin, Psychologie et morale 3:409, as follows: "... ad affectum sunt virtutes, que ad aspectum nequaquam". The view that some of the gifts are virtues, but not the "contemplative" gifts, is mentioned and rejected by Roland of Cremona, Summae... liber tertius 297.7, ed. A. Cortesi (Bergamo 1962), 833-34. Robert Kilwardby, Quaestiones in librum tertium Sentenciarum, vol. 2, q. 58 (ed. cit. 228, 235), espouses a version of the theory to which Hinton alludes.

- [Ox]
- 2.1.3. Quot autem et que sint patet Ysaie xi requiescat super eum, scilicet Christum, spiritus sapiencie et intellectus etcetera.⁸⁸ Duo prima digniora sunt que regunt uitam contemplatiuam, alia quinque regunt actiuam.
- 280 285 290 295 300 Require in margine.⁸⁹ Nota quod primum donum in ascendendo est illud quod ultimo ponitur, scilicet donum timoris. Psalmi: inicum sapiencie timor Domini.⁹⁰ Set ne timor esset gelidus aut arridus, sequitur donum pietatis que ad omnia est utilis, Thimothei 4.⁹¹ Et ne pietas nimis remissa uel prodiga vel alio modo inordinata, adiungitur sciencia que regat opera pietatis ut discrete fiant. Et ne sciencia inualida sit, additur fortitudo, ut quod quis bene facere nouit, exequi facto possit. Et ne fortitudo sit presumptuosa uel impetuosa, additur donum consilii regens opus fortitudinis, quia fortitudo sine dono consi- 193val lii precipitat secundum Gregorium.⁹² Et ne consilium uideatur incautum, additur intellectus qui est cognitio bonorum spiritualium. Et ut intellectus modo debito ordinetur, datur sapiencia que est cognitio per gustum diuine dulcedinis, que sapiencia dicta est a sapore, non sapere.⁹³
- 2.2.1. Sequitur dicere de illis in specie. Primo de timore. Secundum Augustinum Super Iohannem timor est fuga animi ne perdat quod diligit.⁹⁴ Idem libro 14 De ciuitate Dei: timor est affeccio uel amor fugiens quod ei aduersatur.⁹⁵ Cuius species sunt vi. Est enim timor humanus, mundanus, naturalis, seruilis, inicialis, filialis. Mundanus quo timet quis amittere que sunt mundi. Humanus quo timet ex deliberacione dico penam sui corporis. Naturalis quo naturaliter quis timet mortem siue horribile aliiquid ante deliberacionem racionis, qui timor non est uiciosus sicut duo priores. Seruilis est quando quis timet offendere, tantum ne incurrat penam gehenne; iste aliquantulam habet utilitatem, quia sepe introducit caritatem sicut seta sutoris filum secundum Augustinum.⁹⁶ Inicialis est qui quasi duplcem

⁸⁸ Isa. 11:2.

⁸⁹ In fact, there is nothing in the margin corresponding to this statement. The scribe apparently forgot to copy a table similar to the one found in the Cambridge manuscript.

⁹⁰ Ps. 111(110):10.

⁹¹ 1 Tim. 4:8.

⁹² Cf. Gregory the Great, Moralia in Iob 1.32, 1.35 (SL 143:49, 51); In Hiezechielem 2 hom. 7.7 (SL 142:321).

⁹³ For this etymology, cf. Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.35 art. 1, 2, 3 (ed. cit. 646-47); see also Albert's definitions of sapientia quoted below, nn. 105, 115-16.

⁹⁴ Cf. Augustine, In Iohannis evangelium 46.8 (SL 36:402-03) as extended by Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.34.6 (ed. cit. 635): "Timor est fuga animi ne amittat quod amat".

⁹⁵ Augustine; De civitate Dei 14.7 (SL 48:422).

⁹⁶ Augustine, In Iohannis epistulam ad Parthos 9.4 (PL 35:2047-48).

[Ca] 2.1.3. Quot autem sunt dona et que sunt, patet per Ysaie 11, vbi tanguntur 7 dona Spiritus Sancti hoc ordine: requiescat super eum, id est Christum, spiritus Domini, spiritus sapientie et intellectus, etcetera. Duo autem prima digniora sunt, que regunt vitam contemplatiuam, scilicet sapiencia et intellectus; alia vero 5 regunt vitam actiuam et secundum hoc quere numerum donorum et sufficienciam eorum in margine, vbi est tale signum: 0. Et nota, quod primum donum in ascendendo est illud, quod vltimo ponitur, scilicet donum timoris, quia secundum Psalmum inictum sapientie timor Domini. Sed ne timor gelidus esset aut aridus, sequitur donum pietatis, que ad omnia vtilis est. Et ne pietas nimis remissa sit aut prodiga aut aliquo modo inordinata, adiungitur sciencia, que regat opera pietatis, ut discrete fiant. Et ne sciencia inualida sit, additur fortitudo, ut quod quis bene facere nouerit, l116rb facto exequi possit. Et ne fortitudo sit presumptuosa vel impetuosa, adiungitur ei consilium regens opus fortitudinis, quia secundum Gregorium fortitudo sine consilio precipitat. Et ne consilium videatur incertum, adiungitur intellectus, qui est cognitio rerum spiritualium. Et ut intellectus modo debito ordinetur, datur sapiencia, que est cognitio per gustum diuine dulcedinis, quia sapiencia a sapore dicitur, cum dona sint in regimine humane vite, cuius partes sunt contemplatiua et actiuia.

105

110

115

120

2.2.1. Nunc aliquid de singulis est breuiter tangendum et primo de dono timoris, vbi primo dicendum est quid sit timor, quot eius species et que earum sit donum. Secundum Augustinum, Super Iohannem, timor est fuga animi ne perdat quod diligit. Idem, De ciuitate Dei libro 14: timor est affeccio vel amor fugiens, quod ei aduersatur. Timoris species 6 ponuntur. Est enim timor humanus, mundanus, naturalis, seruialis, inicialis, filialis. Humanus, quo timet quis ex deliberacione penam sui corporis. Timor mundanus est, quo quis timet amittere, que sunt mundi et ideo peccat, ne amittat. Naturalis, quo naturaliter quis timet mortem siue terribile aliiquid ante deliberacionem racionis, qui timor viciosus non est sicut duo priores. Serui-

125

130

0 Donorum alia sunt contemplatiua, aut contemplantur Deum in se, et tunc regitur dono sapienie, Sapiencie 7 in creatura, et sic regitur dono intellectus, Sapiencie 6

Donorum alia sunt actiuia, aut declinando a malo vel fugiendo malum quod fit per donum timoris, Sapiencie primo vel recistendo malo ut fortiter agat quod fit per donum fortitudinis, Sapiencie 4 et ut in agendo debite regatur, datur donum consilij, Sapiencie 5 aut faciendo bonum ut exerceatur in bono opere, datur donum pietatis, Sapiencie secundo in agendo debite regatur datur donum sciencie, Sapiencie tertio

102, 11] 9 MS 114-115. presumptuosa] presumpcta MS 125. diligit] diligat MS
125. 14] 4 MS 128. deliberacione] liberacione MS

- habens oculum, vnum ad fugam pene, alium ad amorem glorie, seruit Deo [Ox] 305 partim timore pene, partim timore iusticie. Filialis siue castus est quo time-mus ne sponsus anime nostre discedat aut tardet uel offendatur. Hic est timor sanctus permanens in seculum seculi,⁹⁷ alio nomine reuerencialis. Nul-lus timor est donum Spiritus Sancti nisi initialis et castus siue reuerencia-lis qui proprie dicitur donum.
- 310 2.2.2. Sequitur de dono pietatis.⁹⁸ Pietas secundum Augustinum est cultus Dei quam Greci eusebiam uocant.⁹⁹ Gregorius Super Iob: pietas est que docet opera misericordie.¹⁰⁰ Tullius in fine prime Rethorice: pietas est beniuolencia in parentes.¹⁰¹ Magistralis est hec: pietas est ex benigne men-tis dulcedine omnibus auxiliatrix affeccio.¹⁰² Dicitur autem pietas quando-315 que motus ipsius affectionis tendens in ipsum Deum, et sic dicitur pietas cultus Dei et sic est in genere uirtutis latrie; quandoque motus [93vbl] affectionis tendens in eius ymaginem, scilicet in hominem, et hoc uel in ymagi-nem Dei que est sibi coniuncta per sanguinem, et sic est beniuolencia in parentes, et sic est species iusticie naturalis; vel tendens in ymaginem Dei 320 generaliter in quantum est ymago, et est beniuolencia in ymaginem Dei, scilicet rationalem creaturam, et sic proprie est donum Spiritus Sancti quod habitat et expeditum reddit beniuolenter se habere ad rationalem creaturam; vel prout afficitur ad rationalem creaturam miseriis oppressam, et sic est pietas que docet opera misericordie, ut dicit Gregorius, set pocius 325 est uirtus quam donum.

⁹⁷ Ps. 19(18):10.

⁹⁸ This paragraph summarizes Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.35 art. 15 (ed. cit. 660-61).

⁹⁹ Augustine, De civitate Dei 10.1 (SL 47:273).

¹⁰⁰ Cf. Gregory the Great, Moralia in Iob 1.32 (SL 143:49).

¹⁰¹ Cf. Cicero, De inventione 2.53.161.

¹⁰² Conrad of Hirsau, De fructibus carnis et spiritus 18 (PL 176:1005A).

[Ca] lis, quando quis timet offendere Deum, ne incurrat penam iehennalem, et iste aliquantulam habet vtilitatem, quia introducit caritatem frequenter sicut seca introducit filum sutoris, ut dicit Augustinus. Inicialis, qui quasi duplicum habet oculum seu respectum, vnum scilicet ad fugam pene, alium vero ad amorem glorie. Seruit enim Deo partim timore pene, partim amore glorie uel iusticie. Filialis siue castus est, quo timemus, ne Christus anime nostre sponsus aliquando tardet aut discedat. Hic est enim timor sanctus, qui permanet in seculum seculi, qui in alio nomine dicitur reuerencialis. Quis autem istorum sit donum Spiritus Sancti patet, quod non mundanus nec humanus, qui simpliciter mali habentur, nec naturalis, quia donum est habitus infusus non innatus, nec seruiliis (proprie dico sumendo donum), nisi sicut generaliter sumitur donum de omnibus, que dantur a Deo et sunt supra naturam aliquo modo ad ordinandam vitam ^{116val} in bonum gracie, sicut enim fides informis potest dici donum Dei <...>⁹, sed initialis, filialis et castus seu reuerencialis proprie dicitur donum Spiritus Sancti. Concedunt tamen aliqui simpliciter, quod timor seruiliis sit donum Spiritus Sancti et tamen negant, quod simul insit cum Spiritu Sancto,¹⁰ quod quater esse potuit non video.

2.2.2. De dono pietatis. Sequitur de proximo dono in ascendendo, scilicet de dono pietatis, vbi nota, quid sit, quot modis dicatur, et secundum quem modum sit donum. Diffinitur autem sic ab Augustino: pietas est cultus Dei, quem Greci et eusebiam vocant. Item Gregorius Super Iob: pietas est, que docet opera misericordie. Secundum Tullium in fine prime Retorice: pietas est beneuolencia in parentes. Magistralis est hec: pietas est ex benigne mentis dulcedine omnibus auxiliatrix affeccio. Dicitur autem pietas multis modis. Quandoque motus ipsius affectionis tendens in Deum, et sic dicitur pietas cultus Dei et sic est in genere virtutis, que est latria. Quandoque autem dicitur motus affectionis tendens in Dei imaginem, scilicet in hominem, quod potest esse tripliciter: vel in imaginem Dei, que est sibi coniuncta per sanguinem, et sic est beneuolencia in parentes et sic est spe-

161. sanguinem] sanguinem MS

⁹ The second half of the comparison is missing. Referring to the following text by Albert the Great, one can suggest that the missing text might have been something like "sic etiam servilis est donum Dei". Note that the repetition of "donum Dei" in both halves of the comparison would help account for the missing passage through eye skip. Cf. Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.34 art. 9 (ed. cit. 640): "timor servilis est donum Dei... donum autem est accipiendo generaliter donum de omnibus quae dantur a Deo, et sunt supra naturam ad ordinandum vitam in bonum gratiae: sicut ergo fides informis est donum Dei, sic etiam servilis est donum Dei".

¹⁰ The view attacked here is defended by William of Auxerre, Summa aurea III.31.1 (ed. cit. 3:604); and by Robert Kilwardby, Quaestiones in librum tertium Sententiarum, vol. 2, q. 49 (ed. cit. 185).

135

140

145

150

155

160

[Ox]

2.2.3. Sequitur de dono scientie. Scientia est lumen spirituale acceptum a Deo, in quo videntur rationes operabilium pertinencium ad uitam, per quas et meritorie uiuamus.¹⁰³ Titi: sobrie et iuste et pie etcetera.¹⁰⁴ Sic diffinitur scientia in quantum est donum. Vnde sicut fides est illuminacio quedam ad credibilia, ita donum scientie est illuminacio quedam ad operabilia. In hoc differt a dono sapiencie, quia sapiencia est cognitio diuina per gustum, scientia est lumen diuinum ad operabilia pertinencia ad hanc uitam.¹⁰⁵ Vnde docet bene conuersari in medio huius nationis prae et peruerse.¹⁰⁶ Augustinus dicit quod sapiencia est de eternis, scientia de temporalibus.¹⁰⁷

2.2.4. Fortitudo secundum quod est donum sic notificatur. Fortitudo est animi affeccio qua cupiditas terrena deprimitur, nullaque aduersitas intimidatur. Hec notificacio uidetur sumi ex uerbis Augustini, De spiritu et anima et in libro 6 Musice.¹⁰⁸ Differt a fortitudine que est uirtus, licet utramque sit circa difficile et arduum, quia fortitudo uirtus sustinet periculum quando necesse est pati uel cedere a bono uirtutis, vt quando queritur fides uel iusticia vel libertas patrie uel huiusmodi. Set donum gratis et ex habundanti offert se statui, in quo talia sepius queruntur, ut statui perfectionis consiliorum.¹⁰⁹ Perfecti habent ita donum in actu, omnes autem in gracia

327. operabilium] corr. ex a deoperabilium MS 328. Titi] lacuna sequitur MS
339-340. utraque] utrumque MS

¹⁰³ Cf. Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.35 art. 4 (ed. cit. 649): "scientia donum est, quod est lumen acceptum a Deo simplex, in quo videntur rationes operabilium pertinentium ad vitam... est lumen sicut fides ad credibilia simplex similitudo divinae veritatis et justitiae, sub quo videntur rationes divinae operabilium per nos, quae pertinent ad modum vivendi sancte et meritorie, sicut dicit Apostolus: Sobrie, et juste, et pie vivamus in hoc saeculo, etc.".

¹⁰⁴ Tit. 2:12.

¹⁰⁵ Cf. Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.35 art. 3 (ed. cit. 647): "sapientia est cognitio per gustum... scientia est lumen divinum ad operabilia pertinentia ad hanc vitam: et ideo dicit in Littera, quod docet bene conversari in medio pravae et perversae nationis".

¹⁰⁶ Cf. Peter Lombard, Sententiae III.35.1 § 4 (ed. cit. 2:199), citing Phil. 2:15.

¹⁰⁷ Augustine, De Trinitate 12.14-15 (SL 50:375-79).

¹⁰⁸ Augustine, De musica 6.15.50 (PL 32:1189); cf. Pseudo-Augustine, De spiritu et anima 20 (PL 40:794).

¹⁰⁹ Cf. Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.35 art. 13 (ed. cit. 658): "[fortitudo] virtus sustinet periculum quando necesse est pati vel recedere a virtutis bono, sicut quando quaeritur fides, vel justitia, vel libertas patriae, vel aliquid hujusmodi bonorum gratiae vel civium: sed fortitudo donum ex superabundanti offert se statui in quo talia saepius quaeruntur, ut statui perfectionis consiliorum".

[Ca] cies iusticie naturalis; vel in imaginem Dei generaliter (inquantum est imago, hoc est inquantum est creatura rationalis), et sic est proprie donum Spiritus Sancti, quod habitat et expeditum reddit hominem ad habendum se benevolentem ad rationabilem creaturam, scilicet ad quemlibet hominem siue indigentem siue non indigentem, et sic conuenit ei maxime illa notificacio magistralis prius posita; item in imaginem Dei, id est hominem, miseriis oppressum, et sic pietas est, que docet opera misericordie, ut dicit Gregorius, et sic pocius est virtus quam donum. Secundum primum modum diffinitur ab Augustino, secundum vero secundum modum a Tullio, secundum tertium a magistris, secundum quartum a Gregorio.

165

170

175

180

185

190

195

2.2.3. De dono scientie duo notanda sunt: quid sit, et in quo differt a dono sapiencie a quo videtur non distare. Secundum quod sciencia proprie donum est, sic diffinitur: sciencia est lumen spirituale ^{l116vbl} acceptum a Deo, in quo videntur raciones operabilium ad hanc vitam pertinencium, per quas sancte et meritorie viuamus. Sic docet Apostolus ad Thimotheum 5: sobrie et iuste et pie viuamus in hoc seculo, vnde sicud fides est illuminacio quedam ad credibilia, ita donum scientie est illuminacio quedam ad operabilia. Dicitur autem in hoc differe a dono sapiencie, quod sapiencia est cognitio diuinorum per gustum, sciencia autem est lumen diuinum ad operabilia pertinencia ad hanc vitam. Vnde sicud dicit Magister in Sentenciis: docet bene conuersari in medio huius praeve et peruerse nacionis. Et hoc videtur consonare verbis Augustini, qui dicit quod sapiencia est de eternis, sciencia autem de temporalibus.

2.2.4. Post hec de dono fortitudinis dicenda sunt duo, scilicet quid sit et qualiter differt a fortitudine que est virtus. Secundum vero quod est donum, sic notificatur: fortitudo est animi affecio, qua cupiditas humana deprimitur, nullaque aduersitas formidatur, et videtur hec notificacio sumi de verbis Augustini, De spiritu et anima, libro 6 Musice. Differt autem a fortitudine, que est virtus, licet vtrumque sit difficile et arduum, quoniam fortitudo virtus sustinet periculum, quando necesse est pati vel cedere a bonitate virtutis, sicut quando queritur fides vel iusticia vel libertas patrie vel huiusmodi, sed fortitudo donum gratis et abundanter offert se statim,¹¹ in quo talia sepius queruntur, vt statui perfectionis consiliorum. Si autem dicatur, quod secundum hoc non habent donum fortitudinis, nisi tantum perfecti, et sic habita vna gracia gratificante non omnes habentur, dicit¹² quod non est verum nec sequitur ex dictis, quoniam perfecti illud donum

173. sapiencie] et add. MS 186. quod] quodam MS 192. queritur] que est add. MS

¹¹ The form "statim" is apparently a misreading for "statui" in Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.35 art. 13 (ed. cit. 658).

¹² The unspecified subject of dicit is Simon. The Compendium theologiae (ed. cit. 312B) reads dico.

- 345 existentes in habitu, vnde qui imperfectus est, ^{l94ral} habet vnde opus perfecconis facere potest si vult.¹¹⁰ [Ox]

2.2.5. Consilium sic diffinitur a Tullio in rhetorica: consilium est aliquid faciendi uel non faciendi vere excogitata racio.¹¹¹ Hanc diffinicionem quidam corrigunt sic: consilium est excogitata racio earum rerum in quibus propter arduitatem indiget quis adiutorio.¹¹² Vnde consilium prout hic sumitur non est de dubio, set de arduo, ad quod propter difficultatem non omnes tenentur. Hoc donum fuit in Christo, sicut et cetera, et semper erit. Consilium secundum quod ponit dubitacionem et querit certificacionem ab aliis non fuit in Christo, quia certissime omnia nouit, quia sic non est donum. Set consilium secundum quod est lumen immissum a Spiritu Sancto, dissoluens omnia dubia et indubitanter dirigens in agressionem arduorum que Deus ad statum perfecconis pertinere propalauit hoc modo fuit in Christo.¹¹³

2.2.6. Intellectus sic diffinitur ab Augustino: intellectus uocatur quo ab omni infirmitate carnali corda mundantur, ut pura intencio dirigatur in finem, scilicet Deum.¹¹⁴ Est autem lumen spirituale infusum ad cognitionem Dei in creaturis. Differt autem a dono sapiencie, quia sapiencia est cognitio per gustum. Est enim quoddam lumen sub quo videntur et gustantur diuina per experimentum. Vnde sapiencia donum proprie est gustus Dei in donis suis.¹¹⁵ Intellectus est lumen datum a Deo ad cognitionem Dei in

362. dono] supp. marg. MS; Deo exp. MS

¹¹⁰ Cf. Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.35 art. 13 (ed. cit. 659): "Si autem objicitur, quod secundum hoc non nisi perfecti habent donum fortitudinis: ergo non habita una gratia gratum faciente habentur omnes. Dicendum, quod non est verum, nec sequitur ex dictis: quia perfecti habent in actu, et communiter omnes in gratia existentes habent in habitu... qui enim imperfectus est, habet unde perfectionis opus facere potest si vult".

¹¹¹ Cicero, De inventione 1.25.36.

¹¹² Cf. Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.35 art. 6 (ed. cit. 651): "consilium generaliter accipitur, secundum quod diffinitur a Tullio: potest tamen specialiter adaptari dono consilii, ut dicatur excogitata ratio earum rerum in quibus homo indiget adjutorio speciali propter arduitatem earum: et ideo consilium non est hic de dubio, sed potius de arduo ad quod propter difficultatem non omnes tenentur".

¹¹³ Cf. ibid. art. 5 (ed. cit. 650): "consilium est donum, sicut communiter dicitur ab omnibus Sanctis... consilium dupliciter dicitur, scilicet a dante consilium, et in quo signat plenitudinem luminis dirigentem in dubiis: et sic fuit in Christo et est in Deo: et hoc modo est donum. Dicitur etiam a quaerente consilium, et sic est dubitantis et ignorantis, et sic non fuit in Christo, nec est donum per hunc modum".

¹¹⁴ Augustine, Sermo 347 (PL 39:1526).

¹¹⁵ Cf. Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.35 art. 1 (ed. cit. 645): "sapientia est quoddam lumen divinorum sub quo videntur et gustantur divina per experimentum. Unde sapientia donum proprie est gustus Dei in donis suis".

[Ca] habent in actu, omnes autem in caritate existentes habent in habitu. Vnde qui imperfectus est, habet vnde opus perfectionis facere potest si vult.

200

2.2.5. Porro de dono consilij duo similiter sunt tangenda, scilicet quid sit et qualiter sit donum, cum non videatur l117ra in Christo, in quo sunt et fiunt omnia bona. Diffinitur autem a Tullio in Rethorica sic: consilium est faciendi vere excogitata racio. Sed non videtur conuenire consilio prout donum, ideoque aliqui corigunt eam sic: consilium est excogitata racio earum rerum, in quibus propter arduitatem indiget quis adiutorio. Vnde consilium, prout hic sumitur, non est de dubio sed de arduo, ad quod propter difficultatem non omnes tenentur. De reliquo dic, quod verissime fuit hoc donum in Christo, sicut est et semper erit in aliis sanctis. Vnde consilium, secundum quod ponit dubitacionem et secundum quod querit certificacionem ab aliis, non fuit in Christo, qui certissime omnia nouit, quia sic nec est donum Spiritus Sancti. Sed consilium, secundum quod est lumen infusum a Spiritu Sancto diffundens omnia dubia et indubitanter dirigens in aggressionem arduorum, que Deus ad statum perfectionis pertinere propalauit, est donum, et hoc modo fuit in Christo.

210

2.2.6. Sequitur de dono intellectus, circa quod attende primo quid sit et secundo in quo differat a sapiencia. Diffinitur autem sic ab Augustino in sermone quodam de timore: intellectus vocatur, quo ab omni infirmitate carnali corda mundentur, ut pura intencio dirigatur in finem suum, scilicet Deum. Est enim lumen spirituale infusum ad cognicionem Dei in creaturis. Differt autem a dono sapiencie, quia sapiencia est cognitio per gustum. Est eciam quoddam lumen, sub quo videntur et gustantur diuina per experimentum. Vnde sapiencia proprie est gustus Dei in donis suis. Intellectus autem non est per gustum, sed est pocius lumen datum a Deo ad cognicionem Dei in creaturis illis, in quibus resultat Deus per graciam, vel in quibus habet resultare per graciam et gloriam. Vnde intellectus est donum quo cognoscimus gratuitate disposiciones celestium et tendimus per ipsas in Deum sic l117rb disponentem.

215

220

225

199. vnde] vnum MS 208. est] eciam MS 210. qui] fuit add. sed exp. MS
216. in quo] a quo MS 226. per] ad MS

creaturis illis in quibus resultat Deus per gratiam, vel in quibus resultare habet per gloriam et gratiam. Vnde intellectus est donum quo cognoscimus gratuitate dispositiones celestium et tendimus in Deum sic disponentem.¹¹⁶ [Ox]

370 2.2.7. Secundum Augustinum sapiencia sic diffinitur: sapiencia est cognitio rerum diuinorum.¹¹⁷ Item ex littera 3 libri Sentenciarum trahitur hec diffinicie: sapiencia est in cognitione et dilectione eius quod semper et incommutabiliter manet, quod est Deus.¹¹⁸ Gregorius sic: sapiencia est donum spe et certitudine eternorum mentem reficiens.¹¹⁹ Hec dicit operationem eius propriam que l94rb est reficere mentem per gustum.

375 2.3. Timor quo quis deprimitur ut non in uanum se extollat, excludit superbiam. Pietas que illatas iniurias sibi remittit, expellit iram que vindictam querit. Sciencia que mentem illuminat, euacuat inuidiam que mentem excecat. Fortitudo que excellit in arduis, pellit accidiam que torpet in imis. Consilium quod docet pro transitoriis eterna mercari, remouet auariciam que negociatur in terrenis. Intellectus quo delectamur in bonis spiritualibus, excludit gulam que male delectatur in carnalibus. Sapiencia per quam pure delectamur in Deo, delet luxuriam qua quis delectatur impudice in corpore misero.

385 3.1.1. Nunc de beatitudinibus. Est beatitudo duplex, vie et patrie. Beatitudo uie consistit in perfecta euacuacione miserie culpe, et quoad essenciam et quoad occasiones. Vnde quia iste uirtutes euacuant culpam et culpe occasiones, et disponunt ad beatitudinem patrie, dicuntur beatitudines. Beatitudo patrie consistit in omnimoda euacuacione utriusque, scilicet miserie et culpe, et sic dicuntur beatitudines premia dictis uirtutibus. *Ipsorum est regnum celorum.*¹²⁰ Saturabuntur etcetera.¹²¹ Vnde varia ratione potest dici quod uirtutes sunt beatitudines, et quod premia correspondencia.

389. uirtutibus] lacuna sequitur MS

¹¹⁶ Cf. ibid. art. 3 (ed. cit. 647): "sapientia est cognitio per gustum... sed intellectus non est per gustum, sed potius est lumen datum a Deo ad cognitionem illius creaturae Dei, in qua resultat Deus per gratiam... vel in qua habet resultare per gloriam vel per gratiam: et ideo est lumen quo cognoscimus gratuitate dispositiones celestium, et tendimus in Deum sic disponentem".

¹¹⁷ Augustine, De Trinitate 14.1 (SL 50A:423) as paraphrased by Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.35 art. 1 (ed. cit. 644).

¹¹⁸ Actually Augustine, Enarrationes in Psalmos 135.8 (SL 40:1962); it is also ascribed to Peter Lombard by Albert the Great, Commentarii in libros Sententiarum III.35 art. 1 (ed. cit. 644). Cf. Peter Lombard, Sententiae III.35.1 § 2-3 (ed. cit. 2:199).

¹¹⁹ Gregory the Great, Moralia in Iob 1.32 (SL 143:48), quoted in the same inexact form by Albert the Great, ibid.

¹²⁰ Matth. 5:3, 5:10.

¹²¹ Matth. 5:6.

- [Ca] 2.2.7. Denique dicendum est de dono sapientie et quoniam ex dictis superius patet in parte, quid sit et qualiter se habeat ad donum sciencie et ad donum intellectus, ideo hic sufficit ponere eius notificacionem. Secundum Augustinum sic diffinitur: sapientia est cognitio rerum diuinorum. Item ex 3 libro Sentenciarum extrahitur ista diffinizio: sapientia est in cognitione et dilectione vel dilectione eius, qui semper incommutabilis manet, quod est Deus. Beatus autem Gregorius sic diffinit donum sapientie: sapientia est donum spe et certitudine eternorum mentem reficiens. Que diffinizio dicit operationem eius propriam, que est reficere mentem per gustum, quod sonat nomen eius. Sapiencia enim imponitur a sapore. 230
 2.3. Vltimo dicendum, qualiter dona excludunt 7 via capitalia. Et sciendum, quod timor, quo quis deprimitur, ut non in uanum se extollat, excludit superbiam. Pietas, que sibi illatas remittit iniurias, expellit iram, que vindicari querit. Sciencia, que mentem illuminat, euacuat inuidiam, que mentem excecat. Fortitudo, que excellit in arduis, pellit accidiam, que torpet in imis. Consilium, quod docet pro transitorij eterna mercari, remouet avariciam, que in terrenis et pro terrenis tantum querit negocia. Intellectus, quo vere delectatur in bonis spiritualibus, expellit gulam, qua vane et misere anime delectantur in carnalibus. Sapiencia, per quam pure delectatur in Domino, extirpat luxuriam, qua quis impudice delectatur in corpore misero. 235
 240
 245
 250
 255
 260
- 3.1.1. Nunc de beatitudinibus tangere restat sub breuitate et primo, quid dicatur beatitudo, an ipsa virtus aut id quod promittitur, utpote ipsa paupertas aut ipsa promissio regni etcetera, qualiter se habeant ad dona et ad virtutes, quare vltime beatudini idem quod prime premium redditur; de qualibet in se, quid sit et eciam qualiter et cum quo dono conuenit, et cui vicio contrariatur. Et sciendum, quod duplex 117val est beatitudo, vie scilicet et patrie. Beatitudo autem vie consistit in perfecta euacuacione miserie et culpe, et quoad essenciam et quoad occasiones. Vlij iste virtutes,¹³ quia euacuant culpam et culpe occasiones et disponunt ad beatitudinem patrie, dici poterunt beatitudines. Beatitudo autem patrie consistit in omnimoda euacuacione vtriusque miserie, scilicet culpe et pene, et sic dicuntur premia dictis virtutibus correspondencia, sicud ipsorum est regnum celorum: saturabuntur etcetera. Vnde varia ratione poteris dicere, quod virtutes ille sunt beatitudines et similiter de beatitudinibus, quod sunt premia correspondencia.

233. dileccione] dilectione MS 233. semper] est add. sed exp. MS 237. enim] autem MS 242. excellit] expellit MS 243. quod] qui MS 245. quo] que MS 250. an] aut MS 252. idem] id MS 257. euacuant] euacuant MS

¹³ The form "Vlij" may be a misreading for "Vnde", which is the reading of the Compendium theologiae (ed. cit. 314A).

[Ox]

3.1.2. Qualiter se habeant ad dona et uirtutes, sciendum secundum Glossam Mathei 5 quod per uirtutes ad dona, per dona ad beatitudines peruenitur.¹²² Vnde uirtutes dicunt inicium bone operacionis et euacuacionem culpe quoad essenciam. Dona dicunt quasi progressum, quia donum expedit actum uirtutis ut expedite operetur.¹²³ Beatitudines autem dicunt consummacionem siue terminum, quatenus potest haberi in uia ut omnem culpam euacuet et omnem culpe occasionem, et delectabiliter bonum |94val operetur quantum possibile est uiatori. Et ideo dicuntur iste beatitudines uirtutes purgati animi,¹²⁴ quia purgant animam ultima purgacione. Vltieme autem beatitudini idem premium redditur, set non eadem ratione, quia regnum in se duo comprehendit, scilicet exaltacionem et abundanciam. In beatitudine autem que est paupertas est summa rerum abdicacio siue abieccio, et ideo promittitur ei regnum in quantum dicit abundanciam. In vltima beatitudine, scilicet beati qui persecucionem patiuntur, est summa deieccio, et ideo promittitur ei regnum in quantum nominat exaltacionem. Vnde quamuis omnibus debeatur, istis promittitur.

3.2.1. Prima uirtus in numero est paupertas spiritus que adaptatur timori et expellit superbiam, cum paupertas spiritus humilitas sit. Set cum paupertas que est beatitudo sit abdicacio temporalium, aut est abdicacio secundum rem aut secundum uoluntatem. Dicitur quod est abdicacio secundum rem et uoluntatem, quia cum beatitudines perfectam faciant peccati exclusionem, tam quoad peccati essenciam quam quoad occasionem; cum abdicacio solum secundum uoluntatem non sit perfecta euacuacio occasionis culpe, quia est ulterior¹²⁵ que euacuat occasionem culpe, scilicet illa que est secundum rem et uoluntatem; igitur sola uoluntas non facit hominem abdicare.

410. spiritus] supp. marg. MS 412. rem] uoluntatem MS

¹²² The gloss is absent from Biblia latina cum glossa ordinaria, 4 vols. (Strasbourg, 1480/81; repr. Turnhout, 1992), 4:[26]. It was, however, quoted by Geoffrey of Babion, Enarrationes in Matthaeum (PL 162:1305B); Alan of Lille, De virtutibus et de vitiis et de donis Spiritus sancti, ed. Lottin, Psychologie et morale 6:27-92, here 87; id., 'A Commentary on the Our Father by Alan of Lille' § 10, ed. N.M. Häring, Analecta cisterciensia 31 (1975), 149-77, here 160; see also Speculum de mysteriis ecclesiae 7 (PL 177:371B) written by an unknown Victorine author; Lotharius de Segni (Pope Innocent III), De missarum mysteriis 5.18 (PL 217:898C). Lottin refers to Biblia sacra cum glossa ordinaria, 6 vols. (Antwerp 1634) 5:133 which apparently contains the gloss at Matth. 6:13. It is also repeatedly quoted in William of Auxerre, Summa aurea.

¹²³ See above, n. 86.

¹²⁴ The expression "virtutes purgati animi" is due to Macrobius, Commentarii in Somnium Scipionis 1.8.9. William of Auxerre, Summa aurea III.35.1 (ed.cit. 3:667), likewise qualifies the beatitudes as such. Moreover, William makes the same connections between the beatitudes and the capital sins as Simon and his abbreviators.

¹²⁵ Instead of "ulterior" (also appearing in Exceptiones, ed. cit. 360), Compendium theologiae (ed. cit. 315A) reads "alia utilior", which seems to make better sense.

[Ca] 3.1.2. Qualiter autem se habent ad dona et ad virtutes? Hoc scito, quod secundum Glosam Mathei 5 per virtutes ad dona, per dona ad beatitudines peruenitur. Vnde virtutes dicunt inicium operacionis bone et euacuationem culpe ad essenciam. Dona autem dicunt quasi progressum, quia donum expedit actum virtutis, ut expedite operetur. Beatitudines autem dicunt consummacionem siue terminum quatinus potest haberi in via, vt omnem culpam euacuet et omnem culpe occasionem et delectabiliter operetur bonum, quantum possibile est viatori. Et ideo dicuntur iste beatitudines virtutes purgati animi, quia scilicet purgant animam vltima scilicet purgacione. Vltime autem beatitudini idem premium redditur, quod et prime, sed non eadem ratione, quia regnum in se duo comprehendit, scilicet exaltacionem et abundanciam. In beatitudine autem, que est paupertas, est summa rerum abdicacio siue abieccio, et ideo promittitur ei regnum, inquantum dicit abundanciam. In vltima vero beatitudine est summa deieccio, et ideo promittitur ei regnum, inquantum dicit exaltacionem. Vnde quamvis omnibus debeatetur, istis tamen solis 117vbl promittitur, quia propter appropriationem istis debetur. De qualibet in se, quid sit, et qualiter, et cui dono competit nunc accedet dicere ad singulas.

265

270

275

280

285

290

3.2.1. Est autem prima virtus seu beatitudo paupertas spiritus, que adaptatur timori et expellit superbiam, cui eciam contrariatur, eo quod paupertas spiritus humilitas sit. Huic autem premium promittitur, scilicet quoad abundanciam, sed quoad exaltacionem promittitur pacientibus persecucionem propter iusticiam, scilicet vltime, regnum celorum. Et nota, quod paupertas hic dicitur abdicacio temporalium secundum rem et voluntatem, quia cum beatitudines perfectam dicant peccati exclusionem tam quoad peccati essenciam quam quoad occasionem, cum abdicacio solum secundum voluntatem non sit perfecta euacuacio occasionis peccati, quia est vltior, que magis euacuat occasionem peccati, scilicet illam, que est secundum rem et voluntatem, patet, quod illa est beatitudo.

273. beatitudini] beatitudines MS 277. beatitudine] benedicione MS 280. qualibet] qualitatibus MS 289. solum] bis MS

- [Ox]
- 420 3.2.2. Secunda est mititas vel mansuetudo, que competit dono pietatis, expellens iram, quia mitis est quem ira vel rancor non afficit. Cui respondet premium, scilicet possessio terre uiuencium.
- 425 3.2.3. Tertia uirtus est luctus, qui est dolor animi caritate informatus. Quem inducit sciencia donum, quia facit agnoscere miseriam propriam et presentis uite statum, que causa sunt luctus. *Qui enim addit scienciam, addit et dolorem.*¹²⁶ Cui respondet pro premio consolacio eterna. Apocalypsis: *absterget.*¹²⁷ Et euacuat inuidiam.
- 430 3.2.4. Quarta est esuries et sitis iusticie, que per donum fortitudinis adaptatur, que est in sustinen- l94vbl dis periculis pro iusticia et fide, que expellit tedium boni et est contra accidiam. Cui uirtuti respondet eterna sacietas uel saturitas.
- 435 3.2.5. Quinta est misericordia, cui adaptatur donum consilii, quod docet nos aliis dimittere minora ut dimittantur nobis maiora, vel conferre terrena ut optineantur celestia, quod est contra auariciam. Cui uirtuti correspondens est consecucio misericordie.
- 440 3.2.6. Sexta est mundicia cordis, cui conuenit donum intellectus, qui est cognitio celestium bonorum, oculum cordis mundans et illuminans, delens gulam que cor corrupxit et excecat. Osee 4: *vinum et ebrietas.*¹²⁸ Cui uirtuti correspondet visio Dei.
- 445 3.2.7. Septima est pax uel esse pacificum, cui correspondet donum sapiencie, que est delectari in Deo in quo summa pax est. Que expellit luxuriam que animum uagum reddit et instabilem. Cui respondet esse filium Dei.
- 450 3.2.8. Octaua uirtus est pati persecucionem propter iusticiam, que clarificat et ostendit quod perfectum, habens respectum ad singula precedencia, vnde et beatitudo respondens ei credit ad capud tanquam circulus perficiens, omnes ambiens et comprehendens.

Potencia anime naturalis

aut est motiuia que saciata presumit de se vel nimis et hoc uel interius et tunc est superbia contra donum timoris uel exterius et tunc est precipitacio quod est contra donum consilii

vel minus

uel interius et tunc est timor malus reddens pusillanimem contra fortitudinem vel exterius et tunc est duricia faciens immisericordem contra donum pietatis aut apprehensiua in qua consideratur potencia cuius uulnus est ebetudo quod sanat donum intellectus habitus cuius uulnus est ignorancia quod sanat donum sciencie actus cuius uulnus est stulticia quod sanat donum sapiencie

¹²⁶ Eccl. 1:18.

¹²⁷ Apoc. 7:17, 21:4.

¹²⁸ Hos. 4:11.

- [Ca] 3.2.2. Secunda est mititas siue mansuetudo, que competit dono pie-tatis et expellit iram, quia mitis est, quem ira vel rancor non afficit. Cui respondit premium, scilicet possessio terre viuencium. 295
- 3.2.3. Tercia est luctus, qui est dolor animi caritate formatus, quem inducit sciencie donum, quando facit agnoscere miseriam propriam et huius presentis vite statum et dilectionem patrie, que sufficiens causa luctus sunt. Qui enim addit scienciam istam, addit dolorem. Cui enim pro certo respondet eterna consolacio, in qua absterget Deus omnem lacrimam etcetera. Et hec euacuat inuidiam, que dolet de bono alieno et letatur de malo. Hic autem econuerso. Hec autem quamvis miseria uideatur, congrue tamen beatitudo propter annexam virtutem dicitur, vel propter annexam dulcedinem, eo quod secundum Gregorium 1118ral dulciores sunt lacrime penitentium quam delicie regum,¹⁴ et Augustinus, Libro confessionum: currebant lacrime et bene michi erat cum illis.¹⁵ 300 305
- 3.2.4. Quarta est esuries et sitis iusticie, que dono fortitudinis adaptatur, que est in sustinendis periculis pro iusticia et fide, que expellit tedium boni, quod est contra accidiam. Cui premio respondet eterna sacietas. 310
- 3.2.5. Quinta, que aptatur dono consilij, est misericordia, que docet nos dimittere alijs minora, ut nobis dimittantur maiora, vel conferre terrena, ut optineantur celestia. Hec expellit auariciam, cuius proprium est congregare, non remittere uel conferre. Premium autem correspondens est misericordie consecucio. 315
- 3.2.6. Sexta est mundicia cordis, cui conuenit donum intellectus, qui est cognitio celestium bonorum, oculum cordis mundans et illuminans. Hac eliminatur gula, que corumpit et excecat cor, Osee 4: vinum et ebrietas auferunt cor. Premium respondens est visio Dei. 320
- 3.2.7. Septima est pax vel esse pacificum, cui adaptatur donum sapiencie, que est delectacio in Deo, qui est *Pax nostra.*¹⁶ Hec expellit luxuriam, que animum non pacificum sed vagum reddit et instabilem. Et respondet premium esse filios Dei. 325
- 3.2.8. Octaua est pati persecucionem propter iusticiam, quod clarificat et ostendit quod perfectum est, habens respectum ad singula precedencia, vnde beatitudo ei correspondens redit ad caput tanquam circulus perficiens et omnes beatitudines ambiens et comprehendens. Hee beatitudines tanguntur Mathei 5.¹⁷
- Explicit.

296. quem] quam MS 314. misericordie] misericordia MS 320. Deo] Deum
MS 325. reddit] om. MS

¹⁴ Spurious.

¹⁵ Augustine, Confessiones 9.6.14 (SL 26:141).

¹⁶ Cf. Eph. 2:14.

¹⁷ Matth. 5:3-10.

- 4.1.1. Vltimo sequitur tangere de uiciis. Et quia sunt via via nature et [Ox] uoluntatis, primo de viciis nature que sunt septem: extollencia, duricia, ignorancia, timiditas, precipitacio, ebetudo, stulticia. Quorum sufficienciam 450 et numerum et qualiter donis contrarientur, quere in margine.
- 4.1.2. Sequitur de viciis voluntatis, hoc est de malo culpe. Primo quid sit peccatum, quociens sit siue quot eius genera, et quid vnumquodque. Secundo specialiter de peccato mortali, scilicet quis eius effectus, quot eius genera et quid singulum ipsorum.
- 455 4.1.3. Peccatum est auersio ab incommutabili bono ad bonum commutabile.¹²⁹ 'Auersio' scilicet voluntatis, in qua proprie et per se est peccatum. 'Ab incommutabili bono' scilicet Deo, qui omnino incommutabilis est. Nec est auersio aliud quam disconfor¹³⁰ mitas uoluntatis create a voluntate diuina, quod est in omni peccato ubi aliquid uult uoluntas creata quod 460 non uult Deus. 'Ad bonum commutabile' scilicet bonum creatum; tamen essencialius est peccatum auersio a bono incommutabili quam conuersio ad bonum commutabile, quia si fit conuersio ad creaturam et non auersio a Creatore, vt quando amat quis creaturam propter Deum, non fit peccatum.
- 465 4.1.4. Tria sunt genera peccatorum, quia omne peccatum aut est originale aut actuale; actuale aut mortale aut ueniale. Originale peccatum est auersio quedam habitualis a Deo, qua anima non reddit Deo iusticiam quam debet. Vnde fere secundum omnes sonat in auersionem habitualem. Hugo de Sancto Uictore: originalis culpa est corrupcio siue vicium quod 470 nascedo contrahimus per ignoranciam in mente et concupiscenciam in carne.¹³¹ Frater Ricardus et sequaces uolunt quod originalis culpa sit necessitas concupiscendi cum debito non concupiscendi. Exemplum de radio contiguato aque qui mouetur mota aqua et quiescente quiescit, et hoc habet ex contiguacione sui cum aqua.¹³¹ Vnde cum maior vnio sit anime et carnis, cum caro sit de se mobilis ad concupiscendum, anima tali carni uita habet necessitatem concupiscendi. Igitur cum caro paruuli, cui infunditur anima, per peccatum primi hominis ad concupiscendum sit mobilis, patet quod eius anime inest concupiscendi necessitas. Nec potest cohibere illam carnem uel sensualitatem sicut potuit anima Ade ante peccatum, que habuit 475 potestatem regendi sensualitatem et libertatem concupiscendi uel non. Vna ergo per peccatum et post peccatum primi hominis inest anime necessitas non retinendi sensualitatem, alia necessitas concupiscendi. Primum est

452. peccatum] secundo add. MS 459. uoluntas] diuina add. sed exp. MS
461. peccatum] peccato MS 465. peccatorum] peccata MS

¹²⁹ Cf. Augustine, De libero arbitrio 3.1 (SL 29:274).

¹³⁰ Hugh of Saint Victor, De sacramentis 1.7.28 (PL 176:299A).

¹³¹ The reference is to Richard Fishacre's commentary on Lombard's Sententiae II.30. See Exceptiones (ed. cit. 363) and "De vitiis", ed. Dondaine, "La Somme", 20; both Walz and Dondaine quote the Fishacre passage in question from different manuscripts.

- [Ca] 4.1.2. |118rb| De vicijs voluntarijs, id est de malo culpe seu de peccato, tangendum est, primo quid sit peccatum in genere, quociens fit siue quot eius genera, et quot genera peccati actualis. 330
- 4.1.3. Primo peccatum in genere sic diffinitur: peccatum est auersio ab incommutabili bono et conuersio ad bonum commutabile, quod sic intellige: peccatum est auersio, scilicet voluntatis, in qua proprie et per se est peccatum, ab incommutabili bono, scilicet Deo, qui omnino incommutabilis est. Nec est auersio aliud quam disconformitas voluntatis create ad voluntatem diuinam, quod est in omni peccato, vbi aliquid vult voluntas creata, quod non vult Deus, et peccatum semper est conuersio ad bonum commutabile, scilicet ad bonum creatum, quod mutabile et continue mutatur, vel saltem mutabile est, et quamvis peccatum in sui diffinizione duo contineat, scilicet auersionem a bono incommutabili et conuersionem ad bonum mutabile, essencialius tamen inest peccato primum quam secundum. Si enim fieret conuersio ad creaturam, ita tamen quod non fieret auersio a Creatore, sicut contingit, quando quis amat creaturam tantum propter Deum, non fieret peccatum. 340
345
- 4.1.4. Sunt autem tria genera peccatorum, quia omne peccatum aut est originale aut actuale, et actuale duplex, quia aut mortale aut veniale. Originale autem est, quod trahimus a viciosa origine, et est auersio habitualis quedam a Deo, quia scilicet anima non reddit Deo iusticiam, quam debet, vnde fere secundum omnes doctores sonat in auersionem habitualem. Secundum Augustinum et Hugonem de Sancto Victore originalis culpa est corupcio seu vicium, quod nascendo contrahimus per ignoranciam in mente et per concupiscenciam in carne.¹⁸ Alij autem volunt, quod originalis culpa est neccessitas concupiscendi, et ponunt exemplum de radio continguo aquae, qui mota aqua mouetur et quiescente quiescit et hoc habet ex continguacione cum aqua. Vnde cum maior sit vnio anime et carnis quam radij cum aqua, cum caro mobilis sit de se ad concupiscendum, anima tali carni vnitia habet necessitatem quandam concupiscendi, tali carni cum fuerit vnitia, nec potest anima |118val cohibere illam carnem siue sensualitatem <...>¹⁹ et insuper libertatem concupiscendi vel non concipi- 350
355
360

334. auersio] aduersio MS 336. auersio] aduersio MS 342. essencialius] essencialiter MS 347. originale] orinale MS 348. et est] in add. MS 351. originalis] orinalis MS 360. sensualitatem] sensualitate MS

¹⁸ The reference to Augustine results from a textual corruption. Neither the Exceptiones (ed. cit. 363) nor the "De vitiiis" section as edited by Dondaine, "La Somme", 217, contain a reference to Augustine. See, however, Compendium theologiae (ed. cit. 318C): "Unde omnes fere Doctores respectu effectus ipsius peccati originalis consonant in ipsam aversionem secundum Augustinum. Hugo de sancto Victore dicit, quod...". The corruption in our text must go back to a similar version.

¹⁹ Again, apparently an eye skip has led to a corruption.

necessitas non faciendi quod debet, secundum est necessitas faciendi quod non debet. Et ita est carencia vtriusque partis iusticie: declinare a malo et facere bonum.¹³²

485 4.1.5. Peccatum actuale mortale sic diffinitur [95rb] secundum Augustinum: peccatum est dictum uel factum vel concupitum quod fit contra legem Dei.¹³³ 'Dictum' propter peccatum oris, 'factum' propter peccatum operis, 'concupitum' propter peccatum cordis. Idem aliter sic: peccatum est 490 uoluntas retinendi uel consequendi quod iusticia uetat.¹³⁴ Effectus huius peccati est uulnerare in naturalibus et spoliare gratuitis, et per consequens penis deputare eternis. Augustinus, De ciuitate Dei libro 12: vicium adimit integratem, pulcritudinem, salutem, uirtutem et quicquid boni per uicum detrahi siue minui consuevit.¹³⁵

495 4.2.1. Genera peccati sunt 7 que vocantur capitalia, quia ab ipsis omnia alia oriuntur. Nunc ergo uidendum de singulis.

500 4.2.2. Secundum Augustinum, Super Genesim ad litteram, superbia est amor proprie excellencie.¹³⁶ Aliter diffinitur sic: superbia est elacio viciosa, que inferiorem despiciens superioribus et paribus satagit dominari.¹³⁷ Ex qua oriuntur contemptus preceptorum siue Dei siue prelati, iactancia, ypocrisia, aliorum contemptus, arrogancia, impudencia, ostentacio, inflacio.

505 4.2.3. Inuidia est odium felicitatis alienae secundum Augustinum.¹³⁸ Damascenus: inuidia est tristitia in alienis bonis.¹³⁹ De qua pullulant odium, susurracio, detraccio, exultacio in malis proximi, affliccio in bonis eiusdem.

4.2.4. Secundum Augustinum, De ciuitate Dei libro 14, ira est libido ulciscendi.¹⁴⁰ Secundum Uictorinum ira est animi motus cum ulciscendi

483. non] bis sed exp. MS

¹³² Cf. Ps. 36:27.

¹³³ Augustine, Contra Faustum 22.27 (CSEL 25:621), as mediated by Peter Lombard, Sententiae II.35.1 § 1 (ed. cit. 1:529).

¹³⁴ Augustine, De duabus animabus 15 (CSEL 25: 70) etc.; Contra Iulianum 1.44 (CSEL 85.1: 31) etc.

¹³⁵ Augustine, De civitate Dei 12.3 (SL 48:357).

¹³⁶ Augustine, De Genesi ad litteram 11.14 (CSEL 28.1:346).

¹³⁷ This definition is the opening phrase of Pseudo-Robert Grosseteste, De septem vitiis principalibus (Bloomfield et al., Incipits, no. 5905; 13th cent.). It also occurs in Guido Faba († ca. 1245), Summa de vitiis, ed. Virgilio Pini, "La Summa de vitiis et virtutibus di Guido Faba", Quadrivium 1 (1956), 41-152, here 102, and in Thomas of Ireland, Manipulus florum (ca. 1306), where it is attributed to "Hugo"; see C. Nighman's electronic edition at <http://pages.sprint.ca/mf/files> under Superbia AS.

¹³⁸ Augustine, De Genesi ad litteram 11.14 (CSEL 28.1:346).

¹³⁹ John Damascene, De fide orthodoxa 2.14 (PG 94:931) = Expositio fidei 28, ed. B. Kotter (Berlin 1973), 81 (Greek text); De fide orthodoxa 28, ed. E.M. Buytaert (New York 1955), 121 (Latin text).

¹⁴⁰ Augustine, De ciuitate Dei 14.15 (SL 48:438).

[Ca] scendi. Patet ergo, quod per peccatum primi parentis inest anime necessitas duplex: neccessitas vna non retinendi sensualitatem, et alia necessitas concupiscendi. Et primum est neccessitas non faciendi, quod debet, et secundum est neccessitas faciendi, quod non debet. Ita inest ei carencia vtriusque partis iusticie, que sunt declinare a malo et facere bonum. 365

4.1.5. Peccatum autem actuale mortale sic diffinitur secundum Augustinum: peccatum est dictum vel factum vel concupitum contra legem Dei. Et dicit 'dictum' propter peccatum oris, 'factum' propter peccatum operis, 'concupitum' propter peccatum cordis. Effectus huius peccati est vulnerare in naturalibus et spoliare gratuitis et per consequens penis deputare eter-nis. Augustinus, De ciuitate Dei libro 12: vicium adimit integratatem, pulcritudinem, salutem, virtutem et quicquid boni per vicium detrahi siue minui consueuit. 370

4.2.1. Dicuntur autem 7 genera, que vocantur peccata capitalia, quia ab illis omnia alia oriuntur, scilicet superbia, inuidia, ira, accidia, auaricia, gula, luxuria, que retinentur in hoc versu tamen ordine verso: 375

Luxus, gustus, auet, tristis, furiit, inuidet, ambit.²⁰

Sic curantur vicia per contrarium: superbie opponitur humilitas, inui-die caritas, ire pacientia, accidie feroor spiritus, auaricie largitas et pau-pertatis amor, gulosity abstinencia et sobrietas, libidini continencia et mundicia. 380

4.2.2. Est autem superbia secundum Augustinum amor proprie excel-lencie. Aliter autem sic diffinitur: superbia est viciosa elacio, que inferio-rem despiciens superioribus et paribus satagit dominari. Ex qua oriuntur contemptus preceptorum siue Dei siue superioris, ipocrisis, aliorum con-tempitus, arrogancia, castrimargia, in pudicia, ostentacio, inflacio. 385

4.2.3. Inuidia est odium felicitatis alienae, ut dicit Augustinus. Item Damascenus: inuidia est tristitia de alienis bonis. De qua pululant odium, susurracio, detraccio, exultacio in malis proximi, afflictio in bonis eiusdem.

4.2.4. Ira secundum Augustinum, De ciuitate Dei, est libido vlciscendi se. Secundum Victorinum ira est animi motus |118vbl| cum vlcissendi atque 390

362-363. alia neccessitas] in illa non MS 370. per] om. MS 371. 12] 13 MS
377. auet] auor MS 389. exultacio] exaltacio MS 392. tumor] timor MS

²⁰ Cf. H. Walther, Proverbia sententiaeque latinitatis medii aevi, 6 vols. (Göttingen 1963-69), no. 14173a; id., Initia carminum ac versuum medii aevi posterioris latinorum (Göttingen, 1959), no. 10532.

atque puniendi libidine.¹⁴¹ De qua pululant rixe, tumor mentis, contumelie, [Ox] clamor, indignacio, blasphemie.

510 4.2.5. Accidia est animi torpor bona negligens inchoare vel a bono incepto resilire faciens.¹⁴² De qua oriuntur rancor, malicia, pusillanimitas, desperacio, torpor erga precepta, vagacio mentis circa illicita.

515 4.2.6. Auaricia est libido habendi pecuniam secundum Augustinum, De ciuitate Dei,¹⁴³ vel secundum alios generalius: auaricia est scientie |95val siue quarumlibet rerum insaciabilis et inhonesta cupido.¹⁴⁴ De qua oriuntur prodicio, fraus, fallacia, perjurium, inquietudo et contra misericordiam cordis obduracio.

520 4.2.7. Gula est solius corporis illecebrosus et auditus ciborum uel potuum appetitus.¹⁴⁵ Secundum Hugonem de Sancto Victore sic: gula est immoderatus appetitus edendi.¹⁴⁶ De qua oriuntur inepta leticia, scurilitas, immundicia, multiloquium, ebetudo sensuum contra intelligenciam.

525 4.2.8. Luxuria est corporis incontinencia ex pruritu carnis originem trahens.¹⁴⁷ De qua oriuntur cecitas mentis, inconsideracio, inconstancia, precipitacio, amor sui, odium Dei, affectus presentis seculi, horror uel desperacio futuri.

4.2.9. Quinque prima peccata sunt spiritualia, duo ultima carnalia.

¹⁴¹ Cf. Conrad of Hirsau (Pseudo-Hugh of Saint Victor), De fructibus carnis et spiritus 6 (PL 176:1000C).

¹⁴² Cf. Alan of Lille, Distinctiones theologicae (PL 210:980B).

¹⁴³ Cf. Augustine, De civitate Dei 14.15 (SL 48:438).

¹⁴⁴ Cf. Conrad of Hirsau, De fructibus carnis et spiritus 8 (PL 176:1001B); for scientia as an object of avarice, see Peter Lombard, Sententiae II.21.5 § 6 (ed. cit. 1:436).

¹⁴⁵ Cf. Conrad of Hirsau (Pseudo-Hugh of Saint Victor), De fructibus carnis et spiritus 9 (PL 176:1001D), actually defining crapula.

¹⁴⁶ Cf. Hugh of Saint Victor, De sacramentis 2.13.1 (PL 176:526A).

¹⁴⁷ Also quoted in Fasciculus morum, ed. S. Wenzel (University Park, 1989), 648.

[Ca] puniendi libidine. De qua pululant rixe, tumor mentis, contumelia, clamor, indignacio, blasphemie.

4.2.5. Accidia est animi torpor bona negligens inchoare, vel a bono 395 incepto faciens resilire. De qua oriuntur pusillanimitas, malicia, desperacio, torpor circa precepta, vagacio mentis circa illicita.

4.2.6. Auaricia est libido habendi et retinendi diuicias secundum Augustinum, De ciuitate Dei, vel sic secundum alios generalius: auaricia est sciencie vel quarumlibet rerum insaciabilis et inhonesta cupido. De qua 400 oriuntur cupido, prodicio, fraus, fallacia, periurium, inquietudo et circa misericordiam mentis obduracio.

4.2.7. Gula est immoderatus appetitus edendi vel bibendi. Secundum vero alios gula est illecebrosus et avidus ciborum vel potuum appetitus tantum solius corporis. De qua oriuntur inepta leticia, scurilitas, immundicia, multiloquium, hebitudo sensuum circa intelligenciam. 405

4.2.8. Luxuria est corporis incontinencia ex pruritu carnis originem trahens. De qua oriuntur cecitas mentis, inconsideracio, inconstancia, precipitacio, amor sui, odium Dei, affectus presentis seculi, horror et despe- 410 racio futuri.

4.2.9. Sunt et alij plures ramusculi, sed istos ponit Gregorius libro Moralium.²¹ Et nota, quod horum 7 capitalium 5 priora spiritualia peccata sunt, duo vero vltima carnalia, que quia maioris sunt infamie, reputantur a simplicibus grauiora.

4.3. Est autem peccatum veniale minor amor Dei secundum Augusti- 415 num,²² utope quando nimis diligitur aliqua creatura, minus tamen quam creator, quia si eque vel plus diligetur, tunc foret mortale.

Explicit.

Est scriptus liber, sit scriptor crimine liber.

394. bono] malo MS 418. Est ... liber] add. MS alia manu

²¹ Gregory the Great, Moralia in Job 31.45 (SL 143B:1610-12).

²² Spurious.

[Ox]

beatitudines	filii Dei vocabuntur	Deum uidebunt	misericordiam consequentur	saturabuntur	consolabuntur	possidebunt terram	ipsorum est regnum
preparaciones	pacificus	mundicors	misericors	esuriens iusticiam	lugens	mitis [mitis MS]	pauper spiritu
dona	sapiencia	intellectus	consilium	fortitudo	sciencia	pietas	tumor Domini peticiones	libera nos a malo	ne nos inducas	dimittে nobis debita nostra	panem nostrum cotidianum	fiat voluntas tua	adueniat regnum tuum	sanctificetur nomen tuum
vicia nature	stulticia	ebetudo	precipitacio	timiditas	ignorancia	duricia	extollencia
vicia voluntatis	luxuria	gula	auaricia	accidia	ira	inuidia	superbia
virtutes	fides	spes	caritas	fortitudo	prudencia	iusticia	temperancia
sacramenta	matrimonium	penitencia	ordo	confirmacio	extrema vnccio	eukaristia	baptismum